*of note: I issued a complaint x2 to OPA - obviously, they do nothing. It was dismissed x2. yf
all the evidence supports me.*

Dear Ms. O'Toole,

I have been writing the various divisions of the law enforcement agencies of Washington State trying to get my case investigated as it is critical to the case of at least one other victim of the time period who remains missing and I cannot get anyone to listen to me. I am hoping you will be the exception.

First, I apologize for how emotional and disorganized the attachments may seem which are included. I can't help it. I am a professional writer and I work from home due to the trauma of what happened to me decades ago and I am organized in most aspects of my life but I struggle still to this day in trying to communicate all that happened and why it's relevant.

There has been a cover up of the Ted Bundy cases in general and in particular relative to the findings at Taylor Mountain. Victims were left behind and never investigated and evidence at the crime scene of both Issaquah and Taylor Mountain was not protected. People were allowed to profit from the case and too much information was released and other evidence was simply lost, destroyed and discounted.

I was one of the victims who got left behind - I managed to survive but it changed my life forever and I did not realize all that happened due to the captivity trauma [this is supported by case records and my memories, which contained details never released] and the head trauma and the subsequent impact on my memory.

It is very important to me to get the facts of the case straightened out and to be recognized as the surviving victim because my friend's case Georgann Hawkins, depends on it [there is no corroboration to Ted Bundy leaving with her except my testimony so she remains missing] and because he was stalking me over a four year period that I knew him in Tacoma and in Seattle other girls' cases may also be impacted.

I know you don't know me and have no reason to believe me but I wish you did know me. You would know that I am not making it up and not having delusions. The AG Office releasing a memo stating to only use DNA was to me an attempt to cover up the fact that they knew Taylor Mountain had been misrepresented to the public and they did not want anyone to know all that had occurred behind the scenes referencing their own office. In my opinion. If you review the files, you will understand why I make that statement.

Please, review what I am saying and assign an investigator to let me have my say. The only efforts made to date have been to discredit me - there has not been a thorough, fact checked investigation at all.

I would appreciate your help. Best wishes, Susan Roller, 2313 Sunny Lane #G, Suamico, WI 54313

also to be in the case*

Ms. Kathleen O'Toole, Chief of Police
Seattle Police
P.O. Box 34986
Seattle, WA 98124-4986

Dear Chief O'Toole:

I have enclosed a few additional documents related to my case:

1. Emails from my correspondence with Ann Rule that goes back at least as far as 2001.
  - a. They prove consistency even if the details themselves are disjointed - that is because of the severity of the trauma at the time all this occurred.
  - b. The examples prove that my memories contained accurate details long before the case records were released: I knew where he was parking in early 2009 to the exact location that was found in the surveillance records and those records were not publicly released until 2014.
  - c. Stalking trauma, rape trauma, head trauma combined produced the type of fragmented disjointed memory recall that is documented in these emails over at least a 12-year period. I sound articulate now because I have healed but I was in a state of severe trauma still at the time these were emerging and my PTSD symptoms were also delayed.
  - d. Part of the reason I want my case investigated and verified by police is that I want to have my case reviewed for the head injury and recovery because not much is known or documented in sexual assaults with head trauma and it will help me gain understanding with people who have to deal with it in law enforcement and elsewhere. It wasn't just the trauma of being raped - he was hitting me over the head to abduct me that spring of 1974 when he was escalating.
  - e. There are literally over one hundred emails to her. Included also is my description of the car he was driving when he raped me in 1971 and it too matches exactly to the records which had never been released.
2. Beginning of a review document I am putting together of the errors and factual misstatements by Robert Keppel in his book "Riverman".
  - a. It shaped public opinion and it is basically a lie in several parts of it.
  - b. The cases of Ted Bundy were shut down in the belief that nothing would ever be known and yet Taylor Mountain evidence proves beyond doubt that Bundy was an experienced serial killer in 1974 and did not go off on a killing spree all of a sudden. It also shows that Bundy probably had other sites out there.
  - c. There is another aspect to this in that another woman came forward in 1972, stating Bundy had raped her using alcohol to ply her and this is nearly the same experience I had had with him in 1971 when I was sixteen and my account matches hers nearly exactly and hers was never released. Keppel recognized her report as rape but then referred to her in a meeting as "buxom" and essentially discounted anything she had to say because alcohol was involved. Again, I could not have known of her account.

Subject : Re: Stockholm Syndrome 6 attachmentsTo : AnnieR37@aol.com

Ann:

I don't know if you've been in contact with my friends but I got a very weird letter from Anne today that talked about a car in the lot and what she perceived to be as truth in that {that it was rented and not a VW} and she was wrong in her assumptions. Anne lived on the opposite side of the annex from me and she thinks she knows everything about all that went on with me and she was off in her own world as we all were at that time. You know, I don't want to get this dragged into my friends lives to a point where they can't contact me or talk freely to me. Cindy won't even call me back now. Anne's comments to me were that there was a guy that rented a spot behind the annex and it wasn't a VW. I'm sure there was - but Ted wasn't parking outside of my window during the day nor was he there all the time. He only parked there {that I knew of} when he called me - or he parked there when a spot was open and when I didn't know about it obviously as the night in the alley with George. He parked by the bush at the corner of the annex outside of my window. I told you the truth Ann in all of it. People's perspectives may differ and Anne {my friend} I think still has some residual jealousy issues there. Ted also parked up on 16th near 47th because there was at least one time where I met him up by the Beta house where the alley ran into 47th. We used to walk up 16th all the time towards 50th as he didn't want to walk around fraternity row {17th} or run into people. We also went dancing at Dante's tavern one time.

I don't see why this has to be a big deal to contact my friends. I'm just another victim - there's nothing special about it except maybe that we dated. I knew him yes - I dated him in high school and I dated him in college secretly - whether anyone believes me or not. I don't remember Stanford but I remember everything else about that trip in July {Cindy thinks it was August but she is wrong as I went to Hawaii in August and was gone two weeks} and I have a high IQ, I have no illnesses, I have had a thorough workup and CT scan and xrays and etc and I am grounded, healthy, and solid. You know, in Cindy's case, it wouldn't matter if it was August - the Stanford part of that trip is black and so there is something in there that is connected to him. I ended up getting Bell's Palsy when these memories were surfacing as the stress underlying them was high - but that is resolving now and I do not look 54 years old. I have no self image issues or anything else that would influence my mind or my perceptions. In some ways, I think my memories of that time period are sharper than other people's because in getting them back they are so vivid and it's like reliving them. I feel the emotions, I feel the pain if body memory is associated, and I feel the fears. There is nothing psychologically wrong with me except the loss of memories associated to one person during a specific time frame.

The trip to Canada with Cindy was in 1978. I was wrong on that one but that was prior to the memories coming back in clear detail. Cindy thinks we went to CA in August but we didn't - she started her summer school session late that year {session B} and we couldn't have gone then as my parents needed the car back in August and I was in Hawaii during that time with Sue {another friend}. I wish this process hadn't been stalled out for 30 plus years - I feel like I am the one under scrutiny when in reality I probably have a sharper set of memories overall than most people because the trauma of that time period, once the memories came back, made everything much sharper and clearer and again, was like reliving it all over again. But I don't want my friends alienated from me - I don't understand this at all. If you have questions, why can't you just ask me? I have a position of high responsibility now on a research project that will have some national impact and it's very involved. I would not risk my career at this point, nor this project, to come forward under false assertions. There is too much to lose and nothing at all to gain in this. I told you the truth about the night in the alley with George and she is the reason I risked anything at all in coming forward. I knew Ted for a long time - I thought of him as a friend and I cared about him. If I was mislead by him that's his problem not mine - I've evaluated many of these memories and I've reached the conclusion that I am only responsible for how I felt and what my experience was and I was open, and honest about my feelings and about my experiences with you. There have been times in this process where I have wondered if he was killing people out of his frustration with me - I don't believe he meant to hurt me that night in Tacoma but the damage was done.

I'm just being honest with you Ann. I just feel very sad that my friends have to feel as though they can't talk to me or in the case of Anne that she still has to be competitive and tell me what my experiences are and what is "truth" - even though by her own admission I was the most "normal" of the bunch during that time period. I've attached her full letter. Please don't hurt her by disclosing any of it - I am only doing it to prove a point that I was a very strong person at that time period and I still am today.

confirmation of time frames

Subject : confirmation of time frames

To : BlueZinnia9@aol.com

Ann:

Anne can confirm the time frames of the "Secret Friend" - It started slowly after we moved into the annex which she believes was in October and which I think was more than likely November - but sometime in there. She also told me that she remembered it gradually escalating from that point until becoming more intense right before we left for California. Jim Pateneau may also be able to attest to the fact that on the few occasions when we went out late at night that late spring I would get sick and throw up - one where we were out at the railroad tracks, probably late May, around 1am just walking, the VW pulled up in a lot nearby and the lights went on. I knew it was Ted and I was so frightened that I got sick to my stomach. Jim was also on the porch (annex) when Ted walked by one night and the two of them exchanged words - I don't know if he'd remember that now or not but he might if questioned. It wasn't like Ted was around all the time - it was just enough that I was constantly on edge and that behavior too was in process of escalating late spring. The physical overpowering of me was also increasing. It was developing into a "catch and release" type of situation and I was getting increasingly afraid not only to be caught out at night but where it was leading.

I am also trying to find Joy as she was my room mate at the time and she was annoyed with the lights on through the window routine and told me at least once to tell my boyfriend to quit doing that. Apparently I was also at Stanford law school both spring break of 1973 and the summer of 1973 when I went down with Cindy and Sandy. I don't remember the trip in summer 1973 being to Stanford but Cindy is writing it down as apparently we stayed at Stanford law school dorms with the law students and went to several parties there before dropping Sandy in Modesto. It's before my memory tells me that any interaction with him had started again but when I get the information in from Cindy I will let you know if anything is in there - additionally, I have not talked to my sister in years and she and I are like oil and water, but if the "secret friends" phone calls in high school ever need to be verified she had a girls line phone also and she may have taken a phone call from him when he called - it seems to me she did and that she passed him on to me. I also know she was convinced it was a Dave (I think) because he was someone at my high school that she had a crush on and she would draw hearts on his picture all over my yearbook - but she also might be able to state it was Ted. He did give his name when he called. I'd have to find a way to ask her - after all these years I don't know if she'd even remember or remember accurately. That's part of the problem with the memory loss having taken so long to surface. There's some documentation but it's going to be hard to pull all that was probably there originally.

Susan

I don't like disclosing the full extent of injury as that's personal. I had to go in for a laparoscopy in my twenties due to problems that arose from the initial rape. One of those injuries included the ovarian ligament being nearly torn from the abdominal wall. But there were others as well and these injuries are what precipitated the severe endometriosis development. The doctor asked me if I had been raped but I denied it as my memories were gone at that point. I bled for days after the incident, near hemorrhage and thought it was an unusually heavy period. In fact, my father almost took me to the doctor as he had called and I could not get out of bed.

Due to the haziness of this memory in parts, I either still suffer trauma from it or there was date rape drug involvement. We had been out dancing and he was drinking and I was drinking cokes. Truthfully, I am probably lucky that I lived. I remember at the time feeling in shock. I refused to take his calls for awhile and he persisted. I finally took them and forgave him but refused to see him again as I left for UW and he drifted away during 1972-1973 that I can remember anyway now and I put the incident on the back shelf. When he approached me in late 1973, November sometime, it was late and I had gone to the Ave to pick up something from the bookstore. I ran into him and we talked for a long time and he said he wanted to start over. I still had feelings and so I agreed to try again and I gave him my number and he walked with me back to the annex (outside) and where my room was. He then started calling and once again, "secret friend" was established. It started off slowly, sporadically, but began to escalate once 1974 started and was intense during that last period. Susan

Ann:

I will send you the package when it is complete to your post office address. Right now, I am dealing with grief in the loss of both people. Did he ever mention his secret friend at all? I never had a chance as a victim to come forward for closure on that part as I was so emotionally traumatized at the time - if you know of anything please let me know - I would have liked an opportunity to have confronted him to find out why he persisted in keeping that relationship in place with me - it was hurtful then and remains hurtful now. I was smart strong and stable for all of my friends and for my family - the only person in my life at that time who was there for me, as an emotional anchor and as a friend or at least seemed to be, was Ted. He was always concerned about how I felt and what I thought - intellectually I could hold my own with him when we got into philosophy discussions.

The relationship was not all about fear - there were many times on many walks and nights on the phone, where we just talked. In the beginning of 1974, he was asking me out skiing, to movies, to do things. I canceled a skiing date due to weather, but shortly after that he stopped asking for the traditional dating things and we wound up basically just on walks and talks. But he had overpowered me in Tacoma when I knew him {when I was in high school} and he had raped me there - this was the violent time that hurt me physically and I never said anything because I blamed myself and he had been drinking and he was so apologetic about it afterwards or at least claimed to be that I forgave him. I tried to rise above it when we began the dating again in 1974 but could not get past it and his increasing possessiveness to the point of slowly isolating me from friends and following me places at night frightened me. And the "Secret Friend" relationship bothered me - I didn't like having to keep it secret although I complied. I know I have Stockholm Syndrome and I believe he probably was manipulating me at a time when I was inexperienced and vulnerable - but based on the depth of my emotions in the memories and the grief, I know I felt I was in love with him at that time, at least until May when I wanted to start getting out of it.

I never saw George actually hurt - she arrived in the Theta pathway while Ted and I were talking and he was mad at me for avoiding his calls and avoiding him {which I had been doing for at least a few weeks}. He wanted me to carry the briefcase and go out for a drive with him to talk but Manfred was pacing at the door to go in and I was not supposed to have him in the annex and could get in trouble so I told him that I would go later to talk. George volunteered to help Ted - she was my friend, we were close and had been in Daffodil and she was like another little sister to me {similar to Anne} and I think she could tell that there was tension between us and she was trying to help me. They walked me to the annex door, which was only a short distance with George having to stop and wait for Ted several times as he kept trying to get me to go with him. I went in and left the light off to go to bed and put on pajamas and shortly thereafter I heard the noise outside of my window. It sounded like a body falling - I kept telling myself I was imagining things. I was also alarmed because the lot was big and rarely did anyone park outside my window at night unless it was Ted. I was alarmed as I had not seen the lights of his car and if he was indeed parked outside of my window then he had broken his routine and not put his lights on and that frightened me. I snuck to the window and I peeked out the side, lower edge, of it. He did not see me. All I saw was him standing by his VW, with the door open staring at my window. I never saw George - but just the actions and the sound terrified me. I tried to call police as I stated - but I had nothing to go on but a noise. He started the car and drove slowly away from my window with its lights off. I shook uncontrollably. I did not understand why he had not let me know he was there - he usually did. I slept on the floor with my phone all night. Next morning I found the shoe and the earrings, just as stated before, and I took them inside the annex and I asked the girls there {and I probably can remember in hypnosis} if they knew who they belonged to and they didn't and said to put them back. I did. I called Theta house and asked for George and the girl who answered the phone told me she was still out with her boyfriend. I thought George was ok and had gone back to the Beta house - but I was still terrified of Ted. He had never done that before that I knew about and it made me wonder how many times he had been parking outside of my window without the signal. I never talked to him again - I took my test and immediately left for Tacoma and I left to go to California because I feared his anger at me in withdrawing from the relationship and I just couldn't stay in it any longer. I wanted distance and I wanted a real boyfriend, someone who I could share with friends and who didn't frighten me with the physical overpowering {even if for the majority of the time it was never designed to hurt me - that part is true - it's just the way it was done - it's not normal}. I had never been with anyone before him - never had a long serious relationship. We moved too much - I went to four high schools in four years and I was a quiet, smart, intellectual and solid stable if not naive young woman. I was the type of person who took care of injured animals, took care of people's feelings and nurtured - I raised a baby raccoon that was to be put down - she was only 3 days old when I got her and I managed to raise her successfully to adulthood and to place her with a family in Oregon who had a farm. Ted came down to Tacoma and drove by my house when my parents were gone to see her and that is the only time I remember specifically that he did that {most of the time we rendezvoused at UPS and then went from there} and we visited for awhile and we had an intellectual argument on wild animals and whether they were trustworthy and I vigorously defended my beliefs on that subject - which was in support of the animals.

The Corvallis incident was not meant to hurt me but to take from me by physical overpowering the complete physical relationship he wanted from me. But it was terrifying for me. My injuries were done in Tacoma and they were bad: I never went to a hospital but probably should have. I developed severe endometriosis {normally only seen in seat belt injury or violent rape} on nearly every organ and space in the abdomen as well as on my lungs. Doctors said it was the worse case they had ever seen.

My friends are rallying around me now and I did not realize until now how concerned they had been - I had been so isolated from them

Ann - there is one more memory, or visual that surfaces periodically, and I am not sure whether it is an actual event, a composite, or totally imagined. Sometimes, when I am remembering that night, I have an image of this man on crutches. It's very fuzzy. Sometimes he seems to appear from nowhere in the alley when I have my back turned watching Manfred. I sense the presence of someone else and I turn around. I see his form and I feel totally alarmed. Why would a man on crutches be out this late in this alley and why this man that I keep seeing? But I can't seem to get past this initial visual and it fades so it makes me think that I must be imagining it. Also, sometimes it is this image and other times I am heading back to the Annex and I have to go around him to get to the safety of my porch and Annex door and it seems like an eternity. Then it turns into this man on crutches trying to make conversation with me as I attempt to get back inside. I am standing on the bottom step of my Annex porch with Manfred and I don't want to be rude but I want to get away from him and I feel trapped. When these memories were coming back, before I actually saw this visual, or sets of visuals, I was having hip pain of some unknown origin. There was no reason for it. This pain stopped once these visuals came out in the course of a counseling session. The counselor felt they could be real but to be honest, I have no sense if they could be or not. They seem disjointed from some of the other memories that I have of that night. I didn't include them in the first series of letters to you because they don't seem probable to me. Thanks, Susan manner that misrepresented what was found. Robert Keppel played a large role in the dissemination of information related to the evidence found at both Bundy dump sites.

Rather than to correct this misinformation, law enforcement agencies in WA acted in concert to attempt to hide it from the public, moving case files into the Archives as "closed". This movement of files occurred from all entities in Washington State, from the Attorney General Office to the Seattle and King County police. The FBI Seattle even refused to investigate the case.

Findings of additional remains of unidentified victim[s]: Box 33, Folder 2, page 8-41.

Discussion of investigation. "At a location in Issaquah, the remains of Janice Ott and Denise Naslund were found on Sept. 7, 1974. They both disappeared on July 14, 1974 from Lake Sammamish State Park but at different times. Their remains were scattered by animals. There were bones that did not match their skeletons, indicating a third or fourth victim was also left there."

Note: On the maps of the search area of Taylor Mountain, across the stream from where find #30 [blue jean material], #55 [tennis shoe], #80 [bone], #57 [clothing] and #58 [green coat] is marked with an "x" simply "clothing pile". This is not noted on the finds list. Is this something they found as a "pile" and did not note it as deemed it insignificant or is this where they tossed any clothing items [in a general pile]?

Citizen Complaint: SLR June 2017

Note: Chemical bottles [find #25] were found within the crime scene at Taylor Mountain. Bundy told Liz in Utah that he had date rape drugs. It is noted in her book. He worked with a medical supply company and would have had access to these drugs. He also talked of the use of drugs and alcohol to ply victims while they were held captive. Laura Aime's blood tests showed alcohol poisoning in her autopsy report. I also complained of feeling drugged and could not remember most of the rapes and what happened while I was held in captivity and this is documented in emails going back to 2001 as well the memory lapses in my recollections which remain even now. These chemical bottles were important to the crime scene. Bottles were also found at Issaquah but were not noted as to type. Both Taylor Mountain and Issaquah crime sites were near to abandoned homes as well as these are noted in the police records.

Important to the case: Not only WHERE items found and WHAT, but how were they grouped.

The following list shows how the finds were grouped within the search parameters of Taylor Mountain.

Doc #2A: Location of Evidence: Grouped Taylor Mountain - Maps of Search Area

- 1] Found within Station A quadrant:
Skull [original find; not marked on ESAR map except noted in reports]
- 2] Found within Station B quadrant: [coordinates of B shown on map doesn't match station ID]
[#6] piece of bone [only stated location on map; list does not give it]
- 3] Found within Station C quadrant [locations on map not given but finds are marked in an area]
Skull [#22]; thermos bottle [#27] Note: find #22 is recorded as "A" but not in "A" grid on map
- 4] Found within 1000/1000 quadrant:
Hair [#4]; blond hair [#5]; nylon cord [#9]; bone [#32]; bone [#33]; skull [#111]; jawbone with teeth [#112]; jawbone [#113] skull [#114]; brown hair [#115]
Note: The trail appears to end per drawing of area at point 1000/1000. The skull find #111 was actually found below search line 50 at 40' from that point. Skull find #114 was found above where search line 50 is indicated on the map 114' from that point 1000/1000. So, the location of the skulls is actually closer to 200' apart from each other – the notations on the ESAR list are misleading when compared to the maps of the area drawn by ESAR.
- 5] Found within quadrant D:
10-12" bone [#35]; jawbone [#37]; scapula [#39]; bone fragment 4" [#42]; bone animal? [#49]
- 6] Found within quadrant E/Base Truck area [near the stream and powerline road gate into area]
Purple jacket [#43]; clothing [#57]; green coat [#58]; bone [#80]; #55 [tennis shoe]

Found within quadrant E further from base camp and off the trail that dissects quadrant E
Jawbone [#63]; jawbone [#64]; hair 2 clumps [#65]; skull fragment? [#66] tooth [#67]; hair light brown [#72] hair light brown [#73]; hair light brown [#74/75]; hair divided into 2 segments [#75]; hair light brown [76]; rubber fragments balloon? [#77]; jewelry clasp silver [#78]; shotgun shell [#79]; bone 10" leg? [#80]
- 7] Found within quadrant F

Citizen Complaint: SLR June 2017

Lean-to shelter, plastic line tarp, soup can [#68]; animal vertebra [#69]; animal jawbone by fence [#70]; vertebrae [2 animal] by fence [#71]; bolt, nut, washer [#103]; bone fragment [#108]; possible grave [#128]

8] Found within quadrant G:

Shotgun shell [#79]; bones and hair dung [#81]; dark brown hair [#82]; human hair [#83]; 4.5 x 0.5 bone [#84]; hair light color [#86]; bullet 22 slug only [#88]; many bone fragments [#91]; bone 8" x 1" [#96]; blond hair [#97]; blond hair [#100]; blond hair [#107]; blond hair [#116]

9] Found within quadrant H

Shotgun shell [#85]; small bone [#89]; bone fragment [#95]; black pen [#98]; small bone [#110]; bone [#122]; 22 slug [#132]; bone fragment [#138]

10] Found within quadrant I

Bone fragments [#101]; bullet slug [#102]; bone fragment [#118]; 38 & 22 hollow bullets [#119]; 22 bullet [#120]; 2 .38 cal casings sp [#123]; 22 slug [#131]; 3 slugs (22 cal.) [#133]; shotgun shell [#135]

11] Found within quadrant J

Bone fragment [#87]; shotgun shell [#90]; bone fragment [#93]; jaw fragment [#104]; cork shoe material [#106]; small bone [#134]

12] Found within quadrant K

Bone in animal dung [#143]; unlabeled find [#148] given as location 78' in quadrant K

13] Found in quadrant L

Bone 0.5 x 6" [#146]; Small bones in dung [#152]; toenail in dung? [#156]

14] Found in quadrant M

Bone [#151]; part of a tooth [#154]

15] Found at the intersection of quadrant A and B

Women's underwear [#124] identified in another document as 3 bras; screwdriver [#139]; 4 small bones [#153]

Location of Reference Stations on Taylor Mountain from KCSO ESAR files, stamped "Original"

Station A: From 1000/1000 72° - 337'
Station B: On 4 x 4" concrete post 10'W of 1700' mark on SL 51

Station L: From Section Marker near Powerline Road 124° - 234' 1000/1000 At intersection of SL 50 and SL 51 [large alder with blazes on it]

Note: the following search finds [identified by their numbers on the search list for Taylor Mountain were examined by Sweeney and determined to be not human: #7, #8, #11, #26, #39, #49, #54, #69, #84, #104, #141; #145; #151. Many of the finds were not marked as to location found. Further, the relationship between finds is not recognized simply by the way the grids were created. For example, a find may appear in a grid but actually be close to a find in another grid. Or, finds within a grid may be further apart from each other than some finds in a neighboring grid. This is not easily analyzed from the way the data at the scene was collected and no document that I could find cross referenced the finds in this manner. Also, if distance notations of a find were included, how many feet in a certain direction that the find was located, relative to other finds in the area per the layout of the reference stations and grid lines, is also important. There has never been a public discussion of the Taylor Mountain site relative to its importance in the development of a serial killer. Because the public has believed Keppel's version that it "paled in significance" to Issaquah and that Bundy just used it as a dumping ground, it has not been studied to the extent it should have been.

Further Analysis Examples of Taylor Mountain (using the maps to cross reference the finds):

- 1] Ammunition finds: #131 and #123 were found by powerline road in section I. #123 was found by the section mark.
- 2] The skull find [#22] in quadrant A was actually found near a thermos bottle [#27] which was not marked as to location in the finds list but was noted in location on the map. Near the skull were also found red cloth [#61] and a jawbone [#63]. Additionally, women's clothing #124 {bras} was found at the intersection of A & B - so was a screwdriver [#139] and 4 small bones [#153].
- 3] Blue suitcase #146 was found by #107 blond hair - the blue suitcase was not marked by its location but the blond hair found in #107 was located in grid G at 108'. Section G also contained ammunition; several finds of hair; and bones.
- 3] #83 [human hair], #97 [blond hair], #82 [hair dark brown], #81 [bones and hair], #95 [bone fragment] were all found in proximity to each other even though separated by grid lines.
- 5] Find #111 [skull] was found south of the other skull on the map in another grid area across search line 50.
- 6] In vicinity of station E on map: #78 [jewelry clasp]; #72 [light brown hair]; #73 [light brown hair]; #8 [bones]
- 7] Find #14 was found by #8 - these were groupings of bones. It was identified on the map drawn by ESAR and set apart from the other finds but in the actual list #8 and #14 were not described by designated area.
- 8] Find #106 cork-shoe material was found in J along with bone fragments and jaw fragment. Cork - shoe material could be significant as a few of the girls were wearing shoes of a type that could contain cork material such as clogs worn by Georgann Hawkins. Where is this evidence and why wasn't it tested for DNA when DNA became available? In fact, why wasn't any of this evidence other than bones tested for DNA?

This was a major crime scene and yet the clothing of the women, much of it identified as women's, even including bras, was treated without recognizing how valuable it was long term, not even describing it or at times even noting where an item had been found. There is also the question of the "clothing pile" noted by the stream. Were the ESAR and officers on scene dumping clothing items there or was it an actual dump site of clothing and if the latter - what was in that pile? Additionally, there were multiple finds of animal activity: dung with bones; scat; etc. The presence of this indicates animals had scattered remains and coupled with evidence of possible graves, clothing and weapons that skulls were not dumped there and bodies left elsewhere as Keppel claimed – it was an active killing ground.

Findings of additional remains of unidentified victim[s]: King County Department of Public Safety – Search Mission Report

Mission Commander: G. McKinney/K. Wardstrom, KCP

Location: Taylor Mountain

Summary: Bones found to identify four missing females from the northwest area. WESAR and CAP conducted the evidence search for the bones under the direction of the King County police. One set of bones were found that could not be identified.

Date: 3-3-1975 through 3-8-1975

Note: Civil Air Patrol issued a report on Taylor Mountain site as well as part of their service. On that report they listed the specific finds they had discovered and noted that the area coordinates put the location at Tiger Mountain. In some of the documents throughout the case, there are references to both Tiger Mountain and Taylor Mountain, though the area being discussed seems to be the same.

Superior Court Evidence Lists [shows extent of evidence that was publicly denied]

Items listed as Superior Court Evidence: bone [he notes it as search find 69 and possible animal vertebrae]; plastic line and tarp from the lean-to; hair [he notes as #72 which ESAR describes as light brown]; hair [he notes it as #73 which ESAR describes as light brown]; hair [he notes it as #74 which ESAR describes as light brown]; and hair [he notes it as #76 which ESAR describes as light brown]; orange rubber [he notes #77 which ESAR describes as rubber fragments orn?]; metal clasp [he notes it as #78 which ESAR describes as a silver jewelry clasp]; shotgun shell; bone; animal dung; hair [he notes it as #82 which ESAR describes as dark brown].

3-4-1975 Submitted by Ted Forrester

Items listed as Superior Court Evidence: miscellaneous bones and white hair; misc hair [notes as #4 which ESAR does not identify by color]; misc hair [he notes as #5 which ESAR describes as blond]; bone; bone; bone and hair [he notes as #8 which ESAR describes as bone only]; nylon cord; dark cloth [he notes as #10 which ESAR describes as only as clothing]; two bones; red material fabric [which he notes as #13 which ESAR describes only as clothing].

3-2-1975 Submitted by Robert Keppel

Items listed as Superior Court Evidence: 1 plastic bag with miscellaneous leaves and dirt of depression where skull was laying.

The thermos #27 found by skull #22 does not seem to have been submitted for Superior Court Evidence yet close to it were the remains of more than one victim and other items of evidence which was submitted.

All of these reports are stamped, "Original Submit to records with Case Report". All of these, regardless of who submitted them, note that Robert Keppel is assigned as the detective for the case. He knew the full extent of the evidence that was found despite his comments to the contrary in "Riverman".

DATA

Fig. 3 This list details the remaining documentation from the Bundy years moved to Archives. It is noted "Closed Homicide Files: Ted Bundy" yet in these files is the evidence that Taylor Mountain had been misrepresented to the public and evidence critical to Georgann Hawkins' case who is still missing.

The Archives staff, in coordination with the Sheriff's Office legal unit, did the redaction for the bulk of the Bundy material. Information was redacted by Public Disclosure exemption. The redacted set is current open for review. The originals are closed for 75 years but are being kept in the Archives to preserve the historical record pursuant to RCW 40.14.030. I would like the Archives to be involved in any redaction of the box in question to assure the preservation of the historical record while protecting the privacy of the victims and their families.

Please let me know if you have questions or concerns.

Fig. 4. Internal email which states that the Bundy files were to be closed for 75 years and being moved to the Archives to preserve the historical record. Considering that much information had been lost or misplaced per other internal memos and that Keppel was publishing about these cases for profit while some remained unsolved raises questions as to public accountability and responsibility.

Tom,
Kathy Taylor called today. Her office has a bin of bones. The bin is labeled "Bundy" and has lots of non-human bones in it.
But there is at least one human tibia and fibula in this bin, and possibly one more human tibia.
Kathy thinks based on a description Bundy gave to Keppel in an interview that these may be bones belonging to Georgeanne Hawkins. If I remember correctly Hawkins went missing from Seattle.
She says the only paperwork she has with the bin of bones is KCSO number 75-29267, which I think is the Bundy number. The paperwork also says the bin was signed over to the M.E.'s office on 03.08.84.
Can you research what you can find on the bin being taken to the M.E.'s in 1984? I'm just guessing Green River may have had something to do with this transfer.
Has there ever been DNA collected from any of the missing "Bundy" victims that you know of? I'm thinking if we can contact the family of these missings we can put the North Texas lab to work and possibly identify these victims for free.
Let me know,
DB

Fig. 5 Internal memo stating that Kathy Taylor of the ME office called and that there was a bin of bones in that office labeled "Bundy". The bones were nonhuman but in the bin are at least one human tibia and fibula and possibly on more human tibia. Kathy believes that these could be the remains of Georgann Hawkins. The date is 2005. These bones were not sent to Texas. A tibia and a fibula would have been clearly marked as such and Georgann Hawkins had a deformity of those bones which could have been confirmed as a match by x-ray. What happened to these? The bones sent to TX were collected from a box. Also, the TX bones were not skulls but skeletal remains, contradicting Keppel's public accounts. In this memo the bin of bones is identified specifically as "75-29267" which is the Taylor Mountain investigation. You have a bin of bones identified specifically as tibias and fibula, bones that could have identified Hawkins, with the case number of Taylor Mountain and not Issaquah. When Keppel conducted the search at Issaquah did he know she had been found at Taylor Mountain and that's why he didn't stay on site? These bones were viable evidence in 2005 – what happened to these in particular?

I have completed my review of the material in this box. I have also received a letter from Matthew Conquergood of the Records Center along with a form entitled 'Disposition Authorization Notice' for this box. I assume that since this box has 'reached the end of its legal retention period' at the Records Center it may now be transferred to Archives. I have discussed this with Sgt. Gates, KCSO Major Crimes Unit, and the plan is to have this box sent to the office of the KCSO Legal Advisor, Patty Shelledy for the redaction process. A copy of this email from Deborah Kennedy requesting to be involved in the redaction will be included with the box. The Disposition Authorization Notice will be returned to Matthew Conquergood with a note detailing the current location and anticipated disposition of this box.

The Major Crimes Unit retains a small number of photocopied documents from the Bundy material because of the possibility that the Hawkins remains could be discovered at some time in the future. What I had hoped to find in this box was some documentation about the search that was conducted in 1988 or 1989 based on Bundy's statements to Keppel. If anyone ever comes across such documentation the Major Crimes Unit would appreciate a copy. Do not send it directly to me because the retention period for old detectives is not nearly as well defined.

NARRATIVE:

01-30-89 1130 A meeting was held at an initial staging area in the City of Issaquah to discuss a primary search of an area that possibly contained the remains of one of Ted Bundy's victims. Those present at this briefing were Captain Robert Evans, Robert Keppel--State Attorney General's Office, Bill Haglund--King County Medical Examiner's Office, Sergeant Bruce Peterson, Detective Cecil Ray and I.

01-30-89 1205 We all proceeded to an area which can be described as land that was owned by Burlington Northern Railroad approx. 1.8 miles west of High Point Road, and approx. 450 to 500 feet north of I-90. The site itself was approx. 250' north of an abandoned railroad grade which runs parallel to I-90 in a east west direction and is on the west side of a trail that runs north off of the railroad grade. The area of concentration was approx. 209' north of and area that two sets of human remains were discovered and could be attributable to Bundy's killing spree. Det. Ray and I began to dig in an area about 5' off of the northwest shoulder of the trail. The radius of our excavation attempt was approx. 8' and the depth was up to 18" in some spots. It was determined that this attempt was a futile one due to the area to be covered. A decision was made to come back at a later time with heavy equipment and additional manpower to process this location properly.

Prior to our going back to this site, Det. Ray and I, through the Department of Assessments determined the owners of this land, obtained maps of the area and passed this information on to Capt. Evans and Sgt. Peterson.

02-15-89 0800 The following individuals met at the location of I-90 and the High Point Way off ramp prior to proceeding to the excavation site:

Fig. 7 Hawkins search by Keppel after Bundy execution. The report was never identified as related to Bundy nor was it given Hawkins' specific ID. Instead it was classified as Issaquah -- why? Hawkins was originally grouped with the girls found on Taylor Mountain as she went missing near the time of Brenda Ball and Roberta Parks. So why did Keppel put her search as Issaquah when there was nothing in the

Citizen Complaint: SLR June 2017

SAR of that site to suggest that Bundy took her there? What did Bundy really say to Keppel and where are the remains that the ME found of the tibia and fibula that could have been Georgann's? Why didn't Keppel stay at the search site of Issaquah? Why didn't he reexamine the physical evidence found at the scene of Taylor Mountain or at Issaquah – the girls' bras, the items of clothing and in particular the shoe cork material? Years later, this report could not be found. On 7-24-2015 I called KCSO and talked to Jan Gregory who was handling Hawkins missing person case. Per Jan, her case number was 75-29267 which is Taylor Mountain and not Issaquah. If Bundy stated Issaquah, then why is it now Taylor Mountain?

They also classified Hawkins as "Incident 75-29267" which is the Taylor Mountain death investigation number. ### Interagency Meeting Notes after Bundy's Execution: Statements About Woman He Abducted & Also Statements About Keppel Being "Sensitive" About The Finds On Taylor Mountain

1989 Investigator Meetings
Notes after Bundy
execution

Labeled Interview Bill KESO June 4

they be abductions or whatever. He said there were a number of abductions where he didn't kill, where he should've got caught where people just didn't tell. I can't tell you where they were or when or who. When he was out at Temple in Pennsylvania I guess he had gone up to New York to watch horror flicks up there and case some women up there, now maybe he grabbed a couple there, maybe he didn't. I understand that he told somebody that he might have killed a girl in New Jersey. I asked him about that and he just laughed and said, "Some people will believe anything, just tell them what they wanna hear." Now maybe he was manipulating me. The last time that I spoke to him, the next to the last time I spoke to him, he said, "You've got all 30," and then when I saw him a little bit later that afternoon which was on the eve of his death I said, "Is that it?" and he said, "Yeah, but we're gonna over to specifics, especially the Utah stuff tonight," and then he got ticked, you know when he wasn't allowed to see UIANA and so when FRED (last name?) went back in I asked him, I said, "Would you ask him if he gave me everything?" FRED came out in the morning, PAUL and I stayed up all night, as well as PETE TURNER, and Reverend took me aside and said, "We really didn't talk about the crimes, but he says you got everything." And then when PETE went in again with the tape and I think he related to PETE that you got it all but he gave some specifics a little bit on two more cases is that right? PAUL, I don't mean to put words your mouth but that's was the inference that I got. So, maybe he killed more than 30, I don't know, but he told me that three or four times and he said that's it, people will never want to believe it or they're gonna believe what they want to hear or they're gonna, you know, they're...he just said that, "Would you rather solve a case where a guy killed one person or a hundred people? Once they burn me anybody can say anything," and we just don't know you know, that's...you people will know that, I won't. And even then it's gonna be your investigator of expertise and sharing things, putting together where he was and what bodies we find. Now some of them he felt extremely helpless on. When I had him that one night he just said, "This is fuck up, I didn't plan, I wasn't in my (unintelligible... thing which he called unintelligible) he was going out stalking people. I was just drinking, I'd find

Note: Highlighted areas in the document show the references that indicate they knew Bundy had left a survivor of multiple kidnappings and that he was stalking. Bundy made a specific reference to a sorority girl and my memories contain specific case details present before records were released. This is discrimination by the Attorney General Office of WA and police entities of WA State.

to that department first. I think that's wrong to do that. That's why I have not said one word to the media before all of you have gotten here. Maybe you see it a different way, I don't know.

part ? Look what (??) it seems to me that there's, he was not disclosing stuff that occurred prior to '74, this academically (??)

part ? Is that true and if so or is it true, and if so, is there a reason for that? Because a lot of us, our cases are really '72 to '73.

b; I'm into (his?) time here, I don't have my notes. A lot of my stuff I don't have on tape because he was gonna go from seven or eight years old when things started happening to him when other people should have recognized those things and perhaps they did and did not want to admit them occurring. Nobody becomes a TED BUNDY overnight, he was extremely protective of his family. It served no useful purpose to talk about things that happened there because his family is still alive and others, it would just perhaps be injured a lot to tell about those kind of things, but I was planning for that last night and you now I can't say that enough that I let him sleep, he was real...when DENNIS got out of there with him he was really drained, and the last night was the night we were gonna go over everything. He said, and I don't have my notes, but that '73 was his first murder and I think it was in Oregon if I remember correctly. And I don't have a whole lot of specifics on that. The same as when I had him alone I really tried to find out about those four heads on Taylor Mountain 'cause I knew BOB was sensitive about that, I couldn't get him to tell me where the other, the rest of those bodies were except that they were probably not near the heads 'cause he probably kept the heads longer, that was the inference I got. But he said he started killing in '73. Now I know he's told some people in '69 that he had done some things. He told me had made some dry runs, now whether

Fig. 9 The above shows awareness of the survivor of kidnappings [me] in that Bundy stated these kidnappings were "dry runs". He also stated he was stalking a sorority girl and my locations mirror those of the locations he went to in Florida in a rage. A dry run is against a target by every definition I can find. The other key piece in the conversation is Bill Hagmaier's comment that he tried to find out about the four heads found on Taylor Mountain because "Bob" [Robert Keppel] was sensitive about that. It does not appear that Keppel had told FBI that there was more found at Taylor Mountain than just heads and that in fact only partial skulls were found along with skeletal remains.

Subject: RE: Bundy investigation files

Thanks for the explanation of the difference between the Records Center and Archives. I have always used the words interchangeably and did not know they were two different things.

I think I can offer the following explanation of how this box came to be apart from the rest of the Bundy material.

In 1989 three days before Bundy was to be executed, Bob Keppel of the Attorney General's Office interviewed Bundy in the Florida prison regarding the crimes he committed in Washington. In that interview Bundy provided details of the murder and disposition of the body of one victim, GEORGANNE HAWKINS, who was missing and has never been found. For whatever reason, Keppel reported back to KCSO directly to the GRTF commander, who at that time was Captain Bob Evans. Detectives of the GRTF were assigned to the subsequent unsuccessful search for the remains of Ms. HAWKINS. I suspect that following this search and any other related follow up, this material was sent to the Records Center. The person listed in 'Transmitted By' was P.F. BOWEN, who was a detective assigned to the GRTF. The majority of the material in this box was generated or provided to the KCSO in 1989. It includes:

- 1 - Copies of Keppel's correspondence with Bundy between the years of 1984 - 1989.
- 2 - Documents and notes from conferences held after the January execution of Bundy.
- 3 - A slide presentation containing crime scene and autopsy photographs (probably of KCSO cases).
- 4 - Transcripts of Keppel's and FBI interviews with Bundy.
- 5 - Two volumes of what appear to be original records from the 1970's investigation. One is a volume of Bundy's credit card receipts. Another deals with his employment with the State of Washington, also as a 'Corrections Consultant' to King County to 'research the effectiveness of correctional programs in King County...' and his involvement with the Seattle Crime Prevention Commission. (Yes, I admit I got a bit of a chuckle out of this volume.)

My guess is that this box has never been reviewed or redacted with the rest of the Bundy material. It would seem that the slides containing photos of the remains and autopsy photos would be exempt from public disclosure. Should this box be sent to KCSO Legal Unit for redacting before being returned to archives to join the remainder of the Bundy case materials? It has no connection to the GRTF and/or Ridgway investigations.

Fig. 10. Keppel's actions in the Hawkins search seemed confusing even to his own peers. Combined with his public statements that Taylor Mountain "paled in significance" to Issaquah, that nothing was found at Taylor Mountain but skulls and jawbones [12 bones sent to TX were skeletal]; that Bill Hagmaier noted Keppel was "sensitive" about the heads found on Taylor Mountain and that evidence shows that Taylor Mountain was significant and a well-established crime scene raises questions about why Keppel was not truthful about Taylor Mountain to the public and what seems to be not forthcoming with other members of law enforcement. Why was this never checked by other investigators? What really happened behind the scenes?

Re: Unidentified Human Remains:

HISTORY OF INCIDENT

Theodore Bundy was a serial killer that murdered approximately 30 women in Washington, Oregon, Colorado, Utah, and Florida in the mid 70's. His killing spree began in the Seattle area with a total of eight victims. Two of his eight victims, Donna Manson and Georgette Hawkins are still currently missing persons as their remains have not been found. The remaining six victims were recovered at two different sites. Janice Ott and Denise Nasland were recovered from the Tiger Mountain site. Brenda Ball, Susan Rancourt, Linda Healy, and Roberta Parks were recovered from the Taylor Mountain site. Recently, we have located human remains associated with the Bundy murder victims found at the Taylor Mountain site. These remains are those of at least two victims, but we are unable to determine which two victims they belong to. It is also a possibility that the remains belong to an unidentified victim, or one of the missing persons associated with the Bundy investigation.

ADDITIONAL FACTS

We are currently working on obtaining DNA from the family members of all the Seattle area Bundy victims. These DNA samples will also be forwarded in the near future for DNA processing in hopes of identifying the human remains.

EVIDENCE

Items A-L Skeletal Human remains.

TESTING REQUIRED

Examine for DNA material, and if present, attempt to establish an STR/Mitochondrial profile. Check these profiles for any matches of unidentified human remains in CODIS/NDIS. Upload these profiles for future matches.

Citizen Complaint: SLR June 2017

The above drawing is from when my memories were returning in a broken scattered and shattered form but it is accurate to what happened back then. It shows where I lived in relation to George's abduction that night. I heard Bundy, but did not see him, knock Georgann out and I peeked out the window to see what the sound was as I was terrified of him [related to what happened with me – I did not realize at the time all else he was doing]. I saw him drive away that night but did not know he had George. I also wasn't processing anything very well at that time. Repeated captivity with rape, head trauma and unrecognized and untreated rape syndrome from high school on was taking a serious toll on me. What follows are some of the friends I had back then and their striking resemblance to his victims. Also, I knew Georgann and Ted started with her in his confessions. She was important to him because she was important to me – she was my friend. He was dropping one of his hints to police at the time and being superior to them as was typical of him because he knew what they didn't – that he had been catching and releasing a victim over and over [me] and that I had been the target all along. If I am ever given an honest chance at having what I am saying evaluated it will not only make sense to the cases as a whole but it will help solve a few also that I know he did such as Georgann's, possibly one in Oregon and CA as well.

What follows immediately is another drawing of where my sorority was located and its proximity to Liz, Ted's girlfriend at the time that I never knew about. He was frequently "running into" me around the Greek area and on campus typical of his stalking and control of me. Where I lived at the sorority and nearby in back of the Theta house, also mirrors his stalking routine in Florida when he attacked the sorority.

What follows next is the room I remember being held captive in. There is another indoor location that I vaguely remember but cannot describe it as I was semi-conscious. Only that it smelled intensely musty. I did not know at the time this memory emerged in 2009 [long before the records were released to me] that there were abandoned homes near Bundy's dump sites of Issaquah and Taylor Mountain.

Ted lived in Tacoma; I lived in a nearby suburb Lakewood. Ted's parents lived less than one mile from my father's home in Tacoma in 1974 and prior to that even closer to my father's apartment at the time [he was separated from my mother in summer of 1971 when Ted was actively stalking me]. Phone records would prove contact with him if they still exist. There are other facts as well that prove what I am saying. I think he was using me as a blueprint for his killing – he stated to FBI he was abducting a woman and releasing her to test his skills as a "dry run". A dry run is against a target by definition.\

Now I remember Ted Bundy's room
(from only specific instance so far when I had come to consciousness after being abducted - I don't know where specifically he had found me or gotten me, but I came to consciousness on his bed + handcuffed or tied + not able to speak - I was naked at the time w/ his socks on my feet)

I don't remember a raft, or any other furniture

I haven't found the photo of his room I once saw but it was different though similar

This drawing was done by memory as memories were emerging during 2008 to 2010. This was done in early 2009. I've never been able to get it verified. I found a room on Youtube that claimed it had been Ted Bundy's but the layout of the furniture was different than I remembered it. I would like this drawing fact checked just as I would like the drawing of the Corvallis abduction fact checked as well. I drew it as well as I can remember it. Hugh Aynesworth gave Keppel a statement by Ted that pertained to Corvallis and it was important in that it matched my memories of the events [and my memories preceded the receipt of that particular record] but Keppel never logged it into evidence. He gave it to the department psychiatrist instead. Where is this document? Where are the documents that Keppel was allowed to keep including some of the tapes of his interviews with Bundy?

Tina,

Here is a copy of the BUNDY statement to BOB KEPPEL and a newspaper article that appeared in the Seattle Times for your HAWKINS file. They pretty much confirm that HAWKINS' remains were never found.

I spoke to the Major Crimes bosses here and they asked me to request that you get HAWKINS re-entered into WACIC and NCIC if possible.

I don't know where her dental records might be. I do know that BILL HAGLUND once had a large box of dental records that he kept at the KCME's office prior to the startup of MUPU. I believe that this box was sent to MUPU (Shawn 1-800-543-5678) and I have had some luck with them finding records on old cases that somehow got dropped from WACIC and NCIC.

We have collected swabs from HAWKINS' mother and they have been processed by UNT and are on file in CODISmp. Documents on that project are enclosed also.

Thanks again for your help.

Dear Detective Crenshaw:

This letter is to inform you that STR and mtDNA profiles have been developed for the sample(s), which are associated with your Agency Case # 75-029267, submitted to the University of North Texas Health Science Center DNA Identity Laboratory. The case number assigned by our facility, to the Biological Mother, is UNTHSC-F-3382.1. The DNA profiles for the sample(s) have been entered and uploaded to the Texas Department of Public Safety's State DNA Index System (SDIS). The administrator of the State DNA Index System (SDIS) will then upload these profiles to the FBI's National DNA Index System (NDIS). These results will be periodically searched against all appropriate indexes for potential matches. If a match is confirmed by our facility, a report will be issued to the submitting agency.

Please update your NCIC missing person/unidentified person record to include information on the DNA availability and location. (Example: DNA/Y, DLO/University of North Texas Health Science Center DNA Identity Laboratory, Fort Worth, TX 1-817-735-0606). For NCIC related questions, please refer to the NCIC Operating Manual or contact your State Missing Person Clearinghouse

Again, if a putative match results from index searches, the submitting agencies will be notified immediately. If you have any other missing person questions associated with our facility, please feel free to contact me at any of the following:

STATEMENT OF CONSENT AND PRIVACY STATEMENT

I understand that the answers provided on this form are correct to the best of my knowledge and belief. I fully understand that my answers are important to the evaluation of my kindred relationship to missing or unidentified persons.

I freely and voluntarily consent to provide the UNTHSC DNA/Identity Laboratory with a blood and/or oral swab specimen(s) for DNA analysis and entry into the Combined DNA Index System (CODIS) database, maintained by the FBI under authority of Title 42, United States Code, Section 14132. Investigative agencies having online access to the missing persons database may search the DNA analyses for DNA matches. If a match is found, the additional supplemental information may be released to that agency in support of the purpose for which it was collected. I understand that my records are protected under section 105.22 of Texas State Bill 1304 and can only be disclosed to the parties listed under this section. I also understand that the DNA sample(s) submitted would not be tested for genetic markers that predict biological function and will be destroyed once positive identification is made and a report is issued. I hereby waive any and all claims against the UNTHSC DNA/Identity Laboratory and any employees for any medical complications or other injuries that may arise from providing these samples.

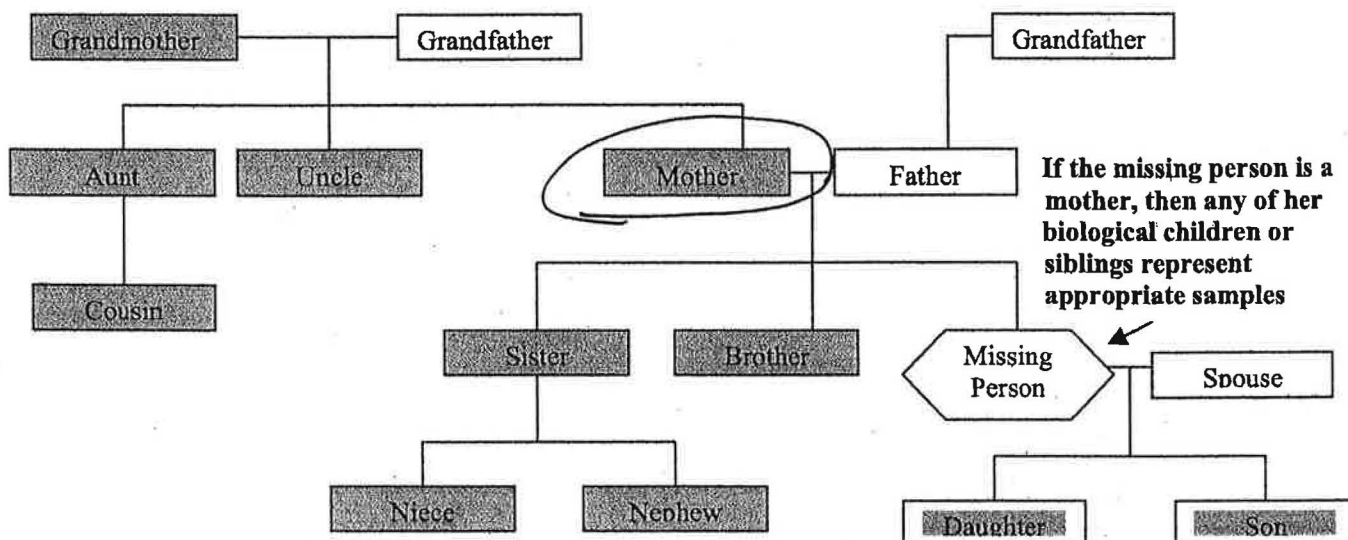

I understand that I am not required or obligated to provide a DNA sample and my consent to have a DNA sample taken is knowingly and voluntarily made. I further consent to the use of my DNA profile in the anonymous population data file for statistical inferences. The data file will not contain personal information or any identifying association to the donor.

Re: Georgann Hawkins 08-20-1955:

HISTORY OF INCIDENT

Georgann Hawkins disappeared from Seattle, Washington on 06-11-1974. Ted Bundy later confessed to her kidnap and murder, but her body has never been found. Recently, we have been made aware of additional unidentified human remains associated with the Bundy murders. It is believed that these remains were recovered from the Taylor Mountain site (Seattle area), in which the remains of four other Bundy victims had been found in 1975. According to our medical examiner's office the remains are those of at least two victims, but we are unable to determine which two victims they belong to. It is also a possibility that the remains belong to an unidentified victim, or one of the missing persons associated with the Bundy investigation. The remains have already been forwarded to your facility for processing and comparison.

EVIDENCE

Item 1 2 Buccal/DNA samples taken from Edith Hawkins, the mother of Georgann Hawkins.

TESTING REQUIRED

Examine for DNA material, and if present, attempt to establish an STR/Mitochondrial profile. Check this profile for any matches of unidentified human remains in CODIS/NDIS.

Sincerely,

Detective Raphael Crenshaw

The Riverman: List of Inaccurate Statements

---

Riverman is not a "nonfiction" work. It contains multiple factual errors. The following list is just a portion of them and each point on the list is supported by a case document referenced to it. Quotes from the book by Keppel are in bold with the refuting document in each case following the quote.

ISSAQUAH DISCUSSION IN "RIVERMAN"

Page 10: "Issaquah....No clothing, wallets or jewelry – items commonly used for preliminary identification – had been found on site." {Keppel is referencing the first day}.

Refuting document: ESAR list of finds Issaquah

1. A shoe is noted as being find #4.
2. Detective Hahn who was in charge, stated in his summary report that many items of evidence were found.
3. All told quite a few items related to victims or unknown victims were found at Issaquah: comb, book, brown camel hair coat, pantyhose, sweater, scarf, gold earring, green sock, bicycle shift cable, etc.

Page 11. "Sergeant Randall ordered me to return the next day with Explorer Search and Rescue (ESAR) personnel to scout the area for any additional bones. It was pickup work. The more senior investigators had obviously thought it was a shit detail for the rookie homicide detective. Even my colleague, Detective Rolf Grunden, chuckled and commented – with a snobbishly superior attitude – that I probably wouldn't find anything. He said they had searched the hillside and had found nothing but bones."

Refuting documents: ESAR list of finds; ESAR Personnel Reports

1. Included in first day of finds is a shoe, a shovel, a depression in the soil, multiple bones, etc.
2. ESAR list of personnel on the first day shows quite a few people on site the first day and that the crime scene was being treated as proprietary being cordoned off, and logs kept of ESAR personnel. There are pages and pages of ESAR reports and personnel summaries of activity.

Refuting document: ESAR Mission Data Sheet; other supporting SAR documents

1. Lee Hahn was the on-scene coordinator day 1.
2. A total of 271 personnel were on site in the search and 106 vehicles used during the search days. Several of the ESAR personnel drove great distances to get there indicating they were not teenagers and had licenses.
3. Multiple documents show extensive personnel presence dedicated to the search, logs of who worked when, traveled how far, etc. Keppel was not in charge, other officers were. The area was cordoned off and protected per protocol. Many of items were found and it was not pickup work. From the moment the hunters reported it, it was recognized and treated as a major crime scene per all the documents associated to the case. These documents were coded with a separate Search and Rescue case number and therefore, may not have been seen by some investigators in the ensuing years, but Robert Keppel knew what was found as he was on site.

Refuting document: Lee Hahn's report of 9-7-1974 [first day of search]

1. Det. Mackie ordered evidence search: Hahn was in charge.

The Riverman: List of Inaccurate Statements

2. Keppel arrived on scene at 8am on 9-8-indicates this date as first official search day after the find of 9-7 of human remains being reported.
3. Hahn's report of search day 1 findings "Through the day ESAR found many items of evidence which were processed by KCP, H&R".
4. Donald Ludine was left in charge also on 9-8-1974. Keppel was on site but not in charge.

"ESAR is a voluntary rescue organization whose members are trained in search techniques for locating lost hikers and downed aircraft. ESAR's 50 or so teenagers, who were supervised by a small cadre of adults, had never participated in a police evidence search before." Pg 14.

Refuting documents:

1. ESAR Logs for the search days show the following: most were professionals in the search teams.
2. Most if not all ESAR personnel had assigned DES [Department of Emergency Services] numbers.
3. Many had cars and had driven many miles – 20 to 50 to get there.
4. Logs were kept and signatures of all ESAR search teams and injuries while searching.
5. The officers listed as in charge of the ESAR members and teams were Lee Hahn and Donald Lundine. Keppel is not indicated as in charge of any ESAR personnel per the records.
6. ESAR team leader was Les Janz.

Refuting document: 9-8-1974. Report by L.Hahn. Officer.

09-07: I talked with Detective Captain W. Mackie at the above [note: Issaquah] location and he requested an evidence search of the area to locate parts of a human body found by some hunters.

09-08 0800 hours. Arrived at the area and set up base camp with 25 ESAR personnel. Detective Keppel was on the scene.

0915 hours. The search was started. Through the day ESAR found many items of evidence which were processed by KCP, H& R.

1200 hours. I left the scene to attend to another search and left Det R Dunn in charge.

1600 hours. Search scene secured and planned to be continued on 8-9-74 with Officer Lundine in charge of coordination.

1700 hours. All SAR personnel out of the area. No CD insurance claims filed.

"Unfortunately, we didn't even consider that they could have been buried. We had found so many bones on top of the ground we didn't even think the killer's modus operandi involved burial. Our inexperience was telling and it favored the killer." Page 16.

Refuting document: ESAR search finds

1. On day 1, a shovel was found – find #9. It was found 66' from search line 1. A depression in the soil was found 120' up search line 1. There were human remains scattered and animal evidence [dung; bones w/scat]
2. Evidence of possible burial: depression in the ground [find #2]; shovel [find #9]; overturned earth [find #321]

"The fresh physical and circumstantial evidence such as eyewitnesses, lead bullets, bullet casings, and weapons were noticeably absent from this scene. The area had been stripped of all these usual forensic clues. It was a scene of great mystery. In the history of King County homicide investigation, no murder case had a crime scene with so little evidence as this one." Page 18

Refuting document: ESAR search finds of Issaquah Crime Scene

1. Brown camel hair coat [find #322]; book [find #308]; women's underwear [find #327]; knife sheath [find #401]; sweater and scarf [find #410]; pantyhose [find #328]; gold earring [find #510]; hair curler [find #512]; (the hair curler was found near the earring); green sock [find #516]; bicycle shift cable [#517]; shoe [find #4]; cement [find #313]; screwdriver [#307]; small bottle [find #5] which was located near bones and the shovel per ESAR notes. Bundy was known to ply victims with alcohol or drugs and had shown Liz in Utah a date rape drug in a small bottle.
2. Evidence of possible graves: shovel [find #9]; a depression in the earth [find #2] and overturned earth [find #321] which was located 38 feet from find #317 which was a femur. This proximity was noted on the original ESAR list of finds.
3. The evidence of Issaquah, such as the clothing items, jewelry and bicycle shift cable was suppressed at Bundy's appeal.

"The killer probably saw for himself the results of predators scavenging human remains, since one body was there for over a month before the other two were discarded." Page 19.

Lack of citation document. Where is the proof of this statement? It is noted in the records that parts were found of at least one to two individuals [as remains did not match the skeletons of the other two girls, Ott and Naslund] but nothing is noted in the records I have indicating that the ME examination showed the unknown body or an unknown body found there to be over a month old. Where is the ME report of that statement or proving document? Keppel did not use citations in his book.

GEORGANN HAWKINS DISCUSSION IN "RIVERMAN"

"[Ted Bundy and reference to Georgann Hawkins]...hoped that he had concealed forever her most identifiable characteristics – her teeth." Page 25

Refuting document:

Case files: Georgann had a deformity of the tibia and fibula bones in one leg – a characteristic that could have identified her remains. It would only have taken an XRAY to confirm it and DNA would not have been necessary. Two bones were found at Taylor Mountain that were a tibia and fibula and which were sent in a bin of animal bones to the ME office by an unknown individual marked only as "Bundy bones". Police at the time, including Robert Keppel, were very aware of that deformity. Why were these bones not xrayed.

Refuting document: Internal memo: ME Office March of 1984.

"...there is at least one human tibia and fibula in this bin and possibly one more human tibia. Kathy thinks based on the description that Bundy gave to Keppel in an interview that these may be bones belonging to Georgann Hawkins. If I remember correctly, Hawkins went missing from Seattle. She says the only paperwork she has with the bin was signed over to the ME on 3.8.1984....."

TAYLOR MOUNTAIN DISCUSSION IN "RIVERMAN"

"We had learned from Issaquah that there was a pattern established by small animals when they carry remains along animal trails away from the original dump site where the major decomposition takes place. Animals that tugged away a decomposing skull pulled at the remains as the skull was being dragged along the ground. At Issaquah, some teeth and a mandible, as well as the mass of hair,

The Riverman: List of Inaccurate Statements

were dislodged and fell off along the trail. We learned that if we searched in logical directions along known animal trails after the discovery of the skull, we would discover the dislodged parts. We also had discovered that it was important to sift through the dirt along the animal trails for teeth, bullets, fingernails, and jewelry that had been dislodged from body parts." Page 27

Refuting document: ESAR list of finds at Taylor Mountain

1. Everything Keppel describes as having found and learned at Issaquah was replicated at Taylor Mountain in terms of evidence. Taylor Mountain had 158 items found: it had weapons, evidence of bondage, evidence of scattered human remains amid animal scat, as well as clothing, jewelry and other things indicating the killer had spent time at the kill site. Keppel's comments as stated above show that he knew what the meaning of a crime scene similar to Issaquah would indicate a major crime scene. The scale of the evidence found at Taylor Mountain was larger than the scale of evidence found at Issaquah per the records.
2. ESAR records show that no bullets were found at the Issaquah crime scene site; whereas, at Taylor Mountain there were multiple findings of bullets, casings of several types. What was found at both Taylor Mountain and at Issaquah sites were screwdrivers and small bottles or chemical bottles and both were near vacant homes and both had at least one or two unidentified young female remains not associated to known victims.

"The day after the initial discovery of Ball's cranium, six German shepherd search dogs, their handlers and I combed the Taylor Mountain site, hoping to find more bones...unfortunately, a day earlier, I hadn't paid much attention to the markers placed on trees by foresters. Their red flags were too far apart, and the density of the forest made it difficult to determine where the next one would be." Page 29-30

Refuting document: Statement by the forestry student on the skull find on Taylor Mountain taken on 3-2-1975 by Detective Roger Dunn.

1. "We left it (skull) right where it was and then finished our field work. We called King County police last night when we got home sometime around 5:00pm. Today, 03/02/1975, we directed the police back to the skull and assisted with compass coordinates and measurements from where we found the skull back to the ¼ corner of South Section line of Section 20 and 21. [We] measured the distance back to this point, taking several compass headings. ..We gave the exact measurements to an officer."

Refuting document: SAR Mission Data Sheet, 3-3-1975, L.Hahn Detective in charge.

1. He notes on the report that from 3-3- to 3-8 the number and type of personnel included KCP-38; WESAR-378; SAP-103; GSSD-20 [German Shepherd Search Dogs]; WNG - 17; DES-1; Boeing Co - 1; Seattle police - 7; KCEMS - 2.
2. Mission results: Enough bones and skulls were found to identify three of the many missing females of the NW.
3. Many people were involved in the search and recovery of Taylor Mountain. Hahn's report shows that it was an organized coordinated effort involving several agencies.

Refuting document: Report by Ken Wardstrom on 3-3-1975 of initial search.

1. Lt Kraske requested German Shepherd Search Dogs. Keppel went with dog teams to the area.
2. Det Randall and Forester responded to the area as more remains were found.
3. 3-4-1975: ESAR present with 78 persons; teams went into the field.

The Riverman: List of Inaccurate Statements

---

"After the discovery of the skulls and mandibles, our search finds were few and far between. The only human remains we discovered were on the only animal trail that ran along a small creek that meandered down the gentle slopes of Taylor Mountain..." page 32

Refuting document: ESAR List of Finds

1. Over 158 items of importance including skeletal remains [more than just skulls and jawbones]; women's clothing [including 3 bras]; evidence of bondage; evidence of weapons; evidence someone had spent time there; some clothing appeared to be similar to what some of the girls had been wearing when they disappeared.
2. There were multiple listings of bones and bone fragments in the finds list which were embedded in animal scat indicating there was more than one trail that animals had been using. Some evidence was found in animal dung near fencelines.

Refuting document: Multiple reports of items identified and sent forward to Superior Court as evidence.

1. Most of the items found at Taylor Mountain were recorded and noted as Superior Court evidence. So what happened to this evidence and these cases between the time of the finds in 1975 and the time Keppel moved to the Attorney General Office in 1984? From that point forward, the evidence at Taylor Mountain was never discussed except in terms of skulls.
2. Each day on Taylor Mountain a large contingent of personnel were searching and compiling evidence including Civil Air Patrol.

Refuting document: Texas DNA evaluation of skeletal remains found at Taylor Mtn, 2005-2008.

1. In addition to the remains of four victims found at Taylor Mountain, there were also remains of an unidentified victim. Among the skeletal remains found at Taylor Mountain, DNA testing at TX never identified who several bones belonged to – the victim[s] remained unidentified at the time this book was written and the remains were not just skulls or jawbones, but skeletal.

"As I approached the explosive, I could see another group of unexploded large ammunition rounds and rockets. The EAR team had uncovered a dumping field created by a nearby explosives plant at the end of the dirt power line road that extended to the east from Highway 18....The last thing I needed was for an ESAR kid to blow off a foot while searching." Page 33

Refuting document: ESAR report list of finds

1. Only one explosive device is noted in the reports and that is find #142.
2. There are incident reports in the write-ups for people with cut fingers and hands but there is nothing noted at all for multiple explosive devices of the kind Keppel describes.

Refuting documents: ESAR personnel lists

1. Most were professional people who drove in, some from great distances, to help in the search. The search included people from Civil Air Patrol.

"No bones other than skull parts were being discovered. ...After eight days of searching, we could account for only three skulls, three human jawbones, and a small hair mass. We found numerous individual bones, but they were all confirmed to be animal bones by Dr. Daris Swindler, a physical anthropologist from the University of Washington..." page 33-34.

Refuting document: bones sent to Texas in 2005 for DNA testing

1. Bones identified as skeletal remains were sent to TX in 2005 for DNA testing and were confirmed to be some of the girls found at Taylor Mountain. One group of bones was never identified and did not match Georgann Hawkins.
2. The criminologist on scene was Sweeney, and she ruled out a few bones as non-human but several bones were forwarded on as Superior Court Evidence. It is not noted in the records that I have what happened to this evidence nor to the other scores of evidence found that included women's clothing.
3. The internal memo of 3-8-1984 which states that the ME office received a bin of bones which contained at least one human tibia and fibula and possibly one other human remain and which had been identified specifically as Bundy bones, Taylor Mountain.

"Theories of intentional decapitation were quickly dismissed by our supervisors because we didn't find the neck vertebrae that would have confirmed it. Typically, when a person is intentionally decapitated, the cut is made below the base of the skull because it is relatively easy to sever the vertebrae with the proper cutting tool. Thus, neck vertebrae at a site where a skull is found usually indicates that the person was decapitated...On the other hand we were confident that if those vertebrae were once on Taylor Mountain, we would have found them....In other words, they were put someplace else for a period of time and then brought to Taylor Mountain; the killer was moving around body parts of his victims." Page 34

Refuting document: ESAR List of Finds Taylor Mountain

1. More than one find of vertebrae: some were identified as animal in the listing but others were not. These vertebrae not identified as animal on site were: find #56. Several bone finds were examined by Sweeney on site to determine if they were animal and find #56 [vertebrae] was not in the list identified as animal. It never states whether the vertebrae were back or neck but the ME report clearly states that the bodies identified as the missing girls known were NOT decapitated as Keppel claimed. That does not however, rule out that Bundy had brought other victims there and indeed decapitated them. Keppel's statements are assumptive, applied broadly and not accurate to the findings.
2. Issaquah site also had vertebrae finds on site as well as evidence of animals scattering remains.
3. Taylor Mountain had multiple finds where it was evident animals had scattered remains.
4. Taylor Mountain had evidence the crime scene was there at Taylor Mountain and not somewhere else: clothing, jewelry, multiple human remains including skeletal, evidence of weapons and bondage, evidence the killer had spent time at the location [thermos, food wrappers, lean-to, etc].

Refuting document: Robert Keppel report on ME report of skulls related to decapitation. Report is dated 3-14 1975.

1. ME office examined the remains found at Taylor Mountain and concluded that "the persons had their skulls with their bodies at the time of autopsy".

"Due to the growing intensity of the news coverage of the dump site discovery, I was forced to set up a line across the power line road beyond which no reporter could pass....What I didn't want to reveal was that only skull parts were found. The reporters sensed something was awry because we didn't bring many large packages out. I felt so uneasy about this that I started bringing small bones out in large packages so no one would be the wiser." Page 35

The Riverman: List of Inaccurate Statements

Refuting document: ESAR list of finds at Taylor Mountain: over 158

Refuting document: Reports on Taylor Mountain by multiple individuals

1. Detective reports from those on scene about cordoning off the area to protect the crime scene
2. Involvement of outside personnel such as the Civil Air Patrol
3. Multiple reports by various professionals on the significance of the evidence found at Taylor Mountain. These reports indicate the crime scene was protected, verify the amount of evidence found was significant and also verifies that it was considered a major crime scene.

"No brass! Sergeant Randall, Lieutenant Kraske, and Captain Mackie were conspicuous by their absence. They were career police officers, supervisors in the detective division and not one of them ever came to the scene." Page 35.

Refuting document: Report by Sergeant Randall, stamped "original" and done 3/7/1975.

1. Details how on 3/2 he received a phone call from the forestry students who first discovered the skull on Taylor Mountain.
2. How Lt. Kraske notified Keppel and Dunn about the find. Randall responded to the scene and was briefed by Officer Anderson who was the first officer to respond.
3. 3/3 – Assigned Keppel the death investigation case and made arrangements for KCP ESAR. Detective Forrester was assigned to assist.
4. At 2:10pm Keppel called Randall to respond to the scene as a second skull had been found and he did. The finds were a second skull, two mandibles and one bunch of hair.
5. Randall states that a phone call was then made to Kraske. On 3-5 Randall picked up Seattle police officer Pat Murphy and they went to the search area. Murphy was given a map of the area and a list of what had been found to date.

There are more reports by various other detectives.

Refuting document: Logs of activity during search of Taylor Mountain

1. Various logs show that multiple supervisors made trips out to Taylor Mountain during the entire time the search was being conducted.
2. Several supervisors were out there more than once.
3. If not directly on site, other officers were supporting the efforts of the recovery team at Taylor Mountain by completing tasks associated to the finds there such as notifying next of kin; following up on forensics and so on.

"The final tally of remains for Taylor Mountain paled in comparison to Issaquah: three crania; three mandibles; two small pieces of a skull, one tooth, and a small blond hair mass. Not one other remnant of a human skeleton was discovered." Page 36

Refuting document: University of Texas Missing Persons DNA database: document from King County officials to Tx requesting DNA testing of skeletal remains [not skulls] found at Taylor Mountain. Total of bones sent was 12. Date was 8-16-2005.

1. Skeletal remains, a total of 12 bones which ultimately were determined to be the remains of three of the known victims and one set which could not be identified from the DNA family samples sent and which did not match Hawkins. Shows that more than skulls were found.
2. Multiple finds of hair, some of which was human hair, brown and blonde were noted among the finds at Taylor Mountain.

The Riverman: List of Inaccurate Statements

3. Misleading statement in that it does not talk about the extensive amount of evidence found such as clothing, weapons, items associated to bondage [snug ties]; and items associated to the killer [food wrappings, lean-to, soup can, etc].
4. The evidence found at Taylor Mountain, such as the tibia and fibula, was suppressed at Bundy's appeal.

"[Susan Rancourt] was believed to last have been wearing a yellow coat, short sleeved sweater, gray corduroy pants and brown Hush Puppy shoes." Page 39

Refuting document: ESAR finds of Taylor Mountain: Refutes Keppel's statements that nothing was found at Taylor Mountain relative to the missing girls. Finds actually mirror what Rancourt was wearing.

1. Part of a yellow coat [find #24]
2. Blue jean material [at least one girl was wearing blue jeans: Healy was believed to be in jeans when she disappeared and her remains were found on Taylor Mountain.]
3. Three bras were found on Taylor Mountain.
4. The yellow coat was identified as Superior Court Evidence.
5. Greg Canova was prosecutor in 1984 for the AG Office. Would he have had jurisdiction over the Superior Court evidence at the time the evidence of Taylor Mountain was no longer discussed?

Map to left is from photo plates in the center of "Riverman" by Robert Keppel. On this map, he has drawn for emphasis the finds of the hair and skulls and jawbone.

1. What is not noted in Keppel's version is that a thermos [find #27] was found near the skull.
2. Missing also from Keppel's map are the multiple other items, total of 158, found at Taylor Mountain, many of which were forwarded on as Superior Court evidence.

The Riverman: List of Inaccurate Statements

Refuting document: enhanced original map used by Keppel in his book [same map].

1. #43 was a purple jacket found in the river and forwarded on to Superior Court evidence.
2. #57 is noted as clothing; #58 is noted as a green coat; and #80 is a leg bone ?.
3. A clothing pile is noted on the original ESAR map also with a big "X".
4. These items were found near base camp.

October 3, 1975

4732 West Bertona

Seattle, Washington 98189

This morning at approximately 8:30 AM, Gordon Bowker, my boyfriend, and I sat down to breakfast. I started reading the Entertainment section. Gordon was reading the front page and said "They have a Ted suspect" or something like that. I glanced at the picture, and went back to my breakfast. A few seconds later, I glanced again at the picture. I was struck by the jawline - how it reminded me of the man who raped me the fall of 1973 in Tacoma Wash. I took the paper and looked more closely and felt I recognized him. Said this to Gordon. I looked at the photo for the next 10 minutes or so. While Gordon got ready to go to work we talked about what I should do. I decided to call the police. I told Gordon I probably would, but wasn't positive. He left for work around 9:15 AM. ~~I~~ Around 10 AM I ~~called~~ I searched my letters to see if I had the name of the detective I had talked to at the time of the rape in Tacoma. I didn't.

Around <sup>10 AM</sup> ~~maybe earlier~~ I ~~called~~ got the Tacoma Police Station number from information, and called the police immediately. I was connected to detectives where a woman told me I would be called back since they couldn't find my file.

About an  $\frac{1}{2}$  hour later, Detective Hanson called me. I recognized him as the <sup>CP</sup> man I had seen 2 years ago. ~~He said he <sup>CP</sup> would~~ I told him I was pretty sure the man in the photo on the front page of today's Post Intelligencer was the man who raped me. Hanson said he would "check it out" and call me back later in the day.

He called me back within the hour, asked if I would sign a complaint against the man T. Bundy; He said he would call back about 1 pm to see if I would. I agreed.

Then I called my boyfriend at work - told him that I was very positive about the identification of the man from the photo but that I wouldn't want to prosecute without seeing the man in person. Gordon asked if I would like to ask a lawyer what could happen to me if ~~he~~ <sup>CP</sup> I <sup>CP</sup> went ahead with the complaint. I said yes so he said he would have his lawyer, Paul Silver call me.

Close to noon, Silver called me, said that another member of his law firm who was familiar with criminal proceedings would call me.

Soon after noon Bruce Hyman called to say Fred Meyers was the most experienced in criminal cases, but was on his way <sup>up</sup> out of town, his secretary told him then that Meyers was on another phone line, that he would call me back.

Five or ten minutes later, Fred Meyers called me. He said that I could be in an unpleasant situation with both police grilling me and the defense lawyer grilling me, that I might get some publicity, but that if I was quite sure this was the man, that should not stop me from signing the complaint.

I called Gordon to tell him I decided to sign the complaint.

At 1 pm Hanson called me. I said I was pretty sure from the photo, that Bundy is the man. But that I wouldn't ~~can~~ <sup>op</sup> prosecute without seeing him in person. He said if the case came up for prosecution I would go through a "line-up" ~~of~~ <sup>C.P.</sup> situation, so that I would have a chance to identify him in person. So I told Hanson to come and tried to give him directions to my house.

At 1:45 pm I asked Gordon to come home to be with me while I gave the statement.

This is a free and voluntary statement given to Detective Hanson of the Tacoma P.D. to the best of my knowledge and will testify to the above facts in a court of law if called upon to do so.

SALT LAKE CITY — The Utah State Highway patrolman who arrested Theodore R. Bundy for possession of burglary tools and trying to evade an officer on Aug. 16 said yesterday he had not heard of Bundy before that night.

Sgt. Bob Hayward, who apprehended Bundy, a former Tacoma resident, at 3 a.m. in a Salt Lake City suburb 15 miles from home, dressed in a black turtleneck shirt, Levis and sneakers, said the arrest came about by accident.

Hayward is the brother of the man now in charge of the Salt Lake County sheriff's investigation of the Bundy case, Capt. N. D. (Pete) Hayward.

The trooper said he could not recall his brother, Pete, ever mentioning Bundy's name before the arrest.

As the trooper described the arrest, he was sitting in his unmarked car on duty in front of his own house just before his shift was to end when a Volkswagen which he did not recognize drove by him.

Hayward, who said he always drove his own neighborhood the last minutes of his shift, said he immediately saw a Volkswagen; but about ten minutes later he responded to a call which took him around a corner where he saw a Volkswagen parked.

"He wasn't 200 yards from me," Hayward said, and as he drove alongside the car, he directed his attention on it.

"He took off like a shot when I saw him on and the chase was on," Hayward said. "If he had sat in that V

"He took off like a shot with no lights on and the chase was on," Hayward said. "If he had sat in that Volkswagen,

I probably would have driven right past him," he said.

Bundy drove through two stop signs, one after Hayward had turned on his red light. Finally, Bundy pulled into a service station and stopped, Hayward said.

When the trooper asked him why he had tried to flee, Bundy replied that he was frightened and did not know who the trooper was, Hayward related.

When Hayward asked Bundy what he was doing in the neighborhood at that hour, Bundy answered that he had been

Reward offered for missing girl's return

The parents of Lynda Ann Healy have offered a $1,000 reward for information leading to the safe return of their daughter, missing since January 31.

However, a private detective hired by Mr. and Mrs. James Healy reported that several leads all have reached "dead ends."

Miss Healy, 21, a student and part-time ski-report announcer, disappeared from her University District residence during the night. Left in her room were her clothing and wallet. Traces of blood were found.

The private detective said he is working with the

Introducing a new key to cash and 24-hour banking.

First Bank's come up with a new way for our checking account customers to get cash, plus other basic banking services, day or night—and without a credit card. It's TransAction Card from First Bank, another fresh idea in better banking.

For cash at any Firstbank Cash Machine.

TransAction Card is not a charge card. It lets you withdraw $25 or $50 from your checking or FirstLine Savings account at any Firstbank Cash Machine. We have more than 80 Cash Machines open around the clock, around the State. So wherever you live or work you're never far from ready cash when you have a TransAction Card.

For deposits and payments, too.

TransAction Card lets you deposit money to your checking or FirstLine Savings account as well as transferring funds from one account to another. And you can make a payment on a First Bank loan if you like. All at the Cash Machine, 24 hours a day.

Give it a try!

Any First Bank branch will be glad to show you how to use a TransAction Card and the Cash Machine. It's a quick way to see how easy and convenient 24-hour banking really is. You'll also find out that having a card is safe as well as sensible. Only you can use your TransAction Card, because only you have the personal identification code that allows it to work at the Cash Machine. Another good point: You have absolutely no liability if your card is ever lost or stolen.

So stop by First Bank soon and give TransAction Card a try.

HIS DAUGHTER, Georgeann, has been missing for two weeks. She presumably was abducted from the alley behind her sorority house in Seattle's University District.

Warren came by yesterday. He carried a copy of the Sunday News Tribune's lead editorial. He thought the editorial made sense. It began with this paragraph:

"Our fears are realized. Convicted murderer Carl Cletus Bowles, excused from the Oregon State Penitentiary so he could enjoy sex with a girlfriend, has committed violent crimes in three states and would up wounded and in jail at Coeur d'Alene, Idaho . . ."

After citing other examples, including that of Georgeann, editorial writer Tom Potwin ended with this paragraph:

"Too many wrong men are being treated like little boys. Too many rapes and murders and robberies are being suffered at the hands of men with criminal records. Maybe these rapists and killers think Washington

WARREN THINKS that Washington and Oregon should close the doors on their convicted sexual-deviate inmates — at least until the authorities have a chance to figure out some of the current mysteries.

The police, he believes, are hamstrung enough by court decisions which don't allow them to pick up suspects for questioning without eyewitnesses, evidence, or other cause.

Warren realizes that whatever is done now may well be too late to help Georgeann.

"I just don't want to pick up the paper tomorrow and read about somebody else's daughter being missing," he said.

"I'd be happy to circulate some kind of petition among the parents of the other missing girls — and take it to the governor — if I thought it would help," he said.

Police seek alleged procurer

A WARRANT has been issued for the arrest of a woman allegedly involved in luring two girls to a brothel where they were reportedly "enslaved".

The woman, identified as Mrs Thiamchit Premmani, is the wife of an army officer, who according to two girls, aged 19 and 15, lured them into a house where they were forced to sell their bodies.

Police raided the house on Saturday and arrested two women on "white slavery" charges after one of the girls sent off a letter which was received at Tambon Samsen police headquarters.

The women who were being detained by the police denied enslaving the girls.

Police said the house had been operating as a brothel for quite some time and during the raid several alleged prostitutes escaped.

Bride-to-be attempts suicide

A SARABURI millionaire's daughter attempted to commit suicide on her wedding day Friday by taking an overdose of pills after the groom-to-be failed to show up.

The wedding was to take place at 1 p.m. at a village in Amphoe Phra Phutthabat, Saraburi.

Miss Thanomratana, 19, and her father Mr Chirakphrom, 54, waited for well after the ceremony was to start. When the groom Mr Chaichana Kaewopas, 26, of Samut Prakan, did not come the girl locked herself up in her private room and took an overdose of pills in a suicide attempt.

Relatives, who had earlier seen her weeping bitterly, forced open the door.

Miss Thanomratana was taken to Saraburi provincial hospital, where she regained consciousness.

It was not known why Mr Chaichana did not attend the ceremony.

HEADMAN SHOT DEAD AT MATCH

KHON KAEN, Sat — The

Police Colonel Pramuan Wanickphan, Chief Inspector, 7th Subdiv, Crime Suppression Division, said the married couple were found with 550,000 baht worth of heroin on Friday.

Police raided the two-storey house and immediately arrested the two. They seized heroin contained in packages of two cigarette brands: Lucky Strike and Krathing Thong.

Also confiscated were 14 tools for heroin processing, found concealed on the second floor.

Police said no bail would be granted to the couple, because the case was "serious".

Police charged that the processors had been selling their products in Samut Prakan, Chon Buri, Rayong, Chanthaburi and Trat.

According to police, the maximum penalty for producing heroin for sale under the Harmful Habit-Forming Drug Act B.E. 2502, Section 4, Article 5, is death.

Police reinforce to leave

THE 500 policemen sent to Tak Province to protect Mae Sot road against communist harassment will be pulled

According to Police Colonel (Special) Kitt Saeributr, Commander of the Sixth Provincial Police Zone, construction work on the 135-km service track cutting across the communist Meo-infested area had gone on smoothly after police reinforcements were dispatched there late last month.

About 44 kilometres of the track had been completed. Construction work was hampered by continued harassment by Meo Communists in the area, who saw the completion of the road as a threat to their survival.

Several workers had been injured and construction equipment damaged after terrorists launched surprise attacks on the workers.

The work was halted a few weeks after workers found it impossible to carry on the work under the heavy pressure posed by the Communists.

Police Colonel Kitt said the latest reports from the construction site said the safety had returned to the area and that police reinforcements were no longer necessary in the area.

He said: "An order to draw the policemen has been issued. I expect them to be recalled very soon."

CANBERRA, Saturday — Australian Commonwealth Police Commissioner Jack Davis disclosed a concerted attempt was being made to recruit Australian girls for striptease and prostitution in a South Asian country.

Mr Davis said in a statement he was "most concerned."

Letters were being sent by a procurer on behalf of a syndicate in an Asian country to potential agents in Australia.

Mr Davis did not name the country involved but government sources understood it was the Philippines.

Mr Davis said information collated by the Central Intelligence Section of the Commonwealth Police indicated the Asian syndicate was trying to forge links with organised vice operators in Australia. Attempts at recruitment had also been made to innocent social clubs. — AP

Murder trial bares trail

of vice

HONG KONG, Sat — The body-in-sack murder trial has been unfolding like a movie mystery when the Supreme Court in the past few days heard testimonies on drugs, jewelry-smuggling, homosexuality, nude photos of a male and brutal killing.

The body of rich merchant Woo Chi-kiu, 49, tucked inside a gunnysack, was found bobbing in the harbour waters off Hong Kong's West Point on November 29 last year. Earlier in the day, a mysterious phone call had told the victim's family where the body could be located.

Testifying before the jury, Detective Inspector P.W. Park, who had led an extensive investigation, suspected that Mr Woo had been involved in narcotics trafficking and jewelry-smuggling between Hong Kong and Bangkok.

"We found that Woo had connections with Thailand, one of the main sources of illegal narcotics," said the police inspector.

"Twenty police officers investigating Woo's assets and business associates also found illegal documents and addresses."

The investigation took on a new dimension after police found photographs of a naked man, he said.

Inspector Park, witness for the prosecution, was testifying against two students, Miao Tak-yin, 20, and Li Hon-ling, 19, who had pleaded not guilty to murdering Mr Woo on November 29, 1969.

Earlier, senior Crown counsel Mr Max Lucas told the jury that, in a statement made to the police, Miao had admitted that the two had struck Mr Woo with an iron rod and stuffed his body in a gunnysack before dumping it into the sea.

Miao allegedly told the police Mr Woo had asked him to sign an IOU for HK$5,000 (17,250 baht) and had made "improper suggestions" to him.

Police testimony further added that traces of narcotics had also been found in the boot of Mr Woo's car. — AFP

Police 'adopt' 200 girls

THE Police Department has "adopted" about 200 girls lured to Bangkok by gangs of procurers for prostitution, Pol Gen Prasert Ruchirawongse disclosed yesterday.

The girls will be used as advisers in the campaign to wipe out procuring.

The Director-General of the Police Department said the move was launched in order to "find out the actual nature of these people who think girls are marketable produce."

Gen Prasert, speaking in Chiang Mai, said that the arrested girls, facing prostitution charges, were being treated by the department as "victims" and not "defendants".

He stressed that the girls were being well taken care of by social welfare workers.

"We give them treatment wherever necessary. Very few of them were found to have venereal disease," the police chief said.

"We are not cracking down on the prostitutes. Our law permits us only to keep them under control. We are only really cracking down on the procurers and girl-traders," he said.

He added: "Even if a man put a sign up in front of his house saying: 'We can be hired to rape girls at 50 baht a time,' we can't arrest him."

"On the other hand if we have evidence that procuring is actually being carried out, the law says that we can arrest them," he said.

Meanwhile, in Bangkok, police squads Thursday swooped on two more hotels and carried off another 40 alleged prostitutes.

Owners of both hotels were arrested and found themselves facing dual charges of procuring and operating brothels.

Doctor warns girl students: beware pimps

THE Deputy Director of the Neurological Hospital last night warned girl students attending evening classes against procurers whose modus operandi involves anaesthetising a victim before kidnapping her.

Dr Arkom Sorasuchart yesterday said many prostitutes were former students who had been drugged and kidnapped while walking home from night classes.

He warned all female students to beware of strangers posing as well wishers, protectors or social workers who might actually be pimps.

He enjoined schools, colleges and universities to provide better security for the girls after the close of evening classes.

Parents and guardians should also take pains to ensure the safety of their children before and after going to school, he added.

BUS PLUNGES INTO RAVINE

CHONG, Nakhon Ratchasima, Sun — A driver was killed and passengers seriously injured when the minibus they were travelling in plunged off the road into a ravine here yesterday.

Police said the minibus, driven by Mr Uthit Sayasiri, was overloaded when the accident occurred.

The minibus, a converted pickup truck in which the passengers seat themselves in the back, was carrying 30 persons, more than was permitted.

As a consequence of the ill-distribution of weight and the steep gradient of the climb, the rear-heavy minibus lifted up from the front like a wounded praying mantis, momentarily pawed the air, swivelled around and crashed the 15 feet down, police said.

The injured were sent to the local health centre.

"Social security" now was in a crisis, he said, adding that more and more girls were being lured into prostitution while procurers could not be suppressed.

Prostitutes

Dr Arkom, who is also a member of the National Welfare Council, reported that Thailand now had 151,224 females aged between 13 and 25 working in various places of entertainment such as night clubs, bars, massage parlours most as prostitutes.

He further classified prostitutes into three groups: one group composed of those girls suffering from mental ailments; another group included those confronted with family and financial difficulties; and the third group were those girls having little or no education at all.

But a majority of them were not educated and that was the reason they were easily lured into prostitution, he added.

Seri to report to police

FORMER acting manager of the Thai Development Bank will see Samyod Crime Suppression Squad this morning to discuss the charge that he embezzled 10 million baht from the bank.

Mr Seri Sapcharoen, who resigned from the bank on February 13, said yesterday he would find out the full details of the charge from Samyod Crime Suppression Squad.

Mr Pratarn Duangrat, the bank's legal adviser, on Saturday presented the charge to SCSS alleging that Mr Seri had swindled about 10 million baht between October 21, 1968 and February 13 this year.

Mr Seri said he had not yet received any notification from police to appear for investigation.

"I will go there myself to see what is going on," he said.

"I used to have three million baht in shares with the bank. But I transferred it to the Bank Association of Thailand," he said.

The suit was reportedly approved by the bank's executive committee last week when representatives of the Finance Ministry, Bank of Thailand and Thai Bankers Association in Thailand met to discuss it.

The Thai Development Bank faced a financial crisis this year. Thirteen commercial banks and the Bank of Thailand stepped in to support the bank.

Most abducted girls have low IQ's

MAJ-GEN CHUMPHOL

THE majority of the girls arrested on charges of violating the prostitution law are rarely in the profession of their own violation but have either been misled or abducted, a ranking police official said yesterday.

Speaking on "The Problems of Female Abduction" at the AUA Auditorium, Police Major-General Chumphol Lohachala said that findings indicated that girls having an IQ of between 50 and 69 were abducted or misled into prostitution. This represents about 60 per cent of the total.

The rest of the girls, the Samyod Crime Suppression Squad Commander said, probably entered the profession of their own choosing.

On the other hand, the girls having low IQ's required little persuasion to become prostitutes.

By and large, upcountry girls were more easy to mislead, he said, and represented a significant number among the prostitutes.

He detailed several methods used to lure girls from their homes. Family financial problems played a part in the main.

Other girls were tempted by promises of better jobs in big cities.

Some procurers proposed to support the girls in their studies in beauty saloons and schools, he said.

Others used marriage to deceive the girls.

There were cases, too, he said, where girls were taken from their homes forcibly—under the influence of drugs and anaesthetics.

He warned parents to beware of strangers who might tell their daughters at school that they were seriously ill and the girls had to go home right away. When the girls came out of school, the strangers would then kidnap them and introduce them to brothels, he said.

Parents should teach their daughters not to be too ambitious, to know all about the ones who extended assistance, and never trust a stranger, he said.

Paitoon spies fraud in Roi Et polls

DR PAITON Cruacaew, leader of the Democrat Front Party, yesterday charged that a large number of "soldiers" had been mobilised to cast votes for a government-backed candidate in Roi Et on Saturday during the by-election in which his party's candidate won.

"I am not going to protest now since Chawin Sakham of my party has already won despite the trickery," he said.

He said his party's victory demonstrated clearly that the money from the independent Mrs Sunirat Telan and influence from the government-backed candidate, Mr Chant Chanchoom, could not "sway" the people in Roi Et.

He said his party had spent only 130,000 baht during the whole election campaign.

Victor Mr Chawin told reporters that he would do his best to uplift the living conditions in his province.

Commenting on the election re-run, Roi Et Governor Prachak Vajaraparn praised the voters who, he said, "had shown they could not be bought or forced into electing any man not representing the province.

"It shows also that the people have become more politically conscious," he said.

Reaction to Mr Chawin's victory was favourable.

Deputy Prime Minister Prapass Charusathira said he was relieved that Mr Chawin won the election.

"No one will try to sue the Government and want to nullify it (the election) anymore," he told reporters.

M.R. Seni Pramroj, leader of the Democrat Party, also welcomed Mr Chawin's victory.

"The Roi Et people showed how they could not be influenced into voting for any particular candidate," he said.

Asked about the defeat of his party's candidate, Mr Methi Khampet, M.R. Seni said: "He is too new in the political arena."

314 girls held as witnesses

POLICE have detained 100 girls in Ayutthaya Province during an extensive crackdown on procurers and pimps throughout the country.

This brings the total number of girls detained in the campaign to 314. Previously, it was announced 214 girls were being held in Chon Buri at the Khao Noi Police School.

According to the Deputy Commissioner of Provincial Police, Pol Maj Chamras Mangkalarat, more than 1,000 pimps, brothel operators and procurers were arrested during the campaign, which was launched last month.

The 300-odd girls detained in Chon Buri and Ayutthaya are all under 18 years of age. Police have placed no charges against them but are using them as witnesses against their procurers, Maj-Gen Chamras said.

"We cannot release them now because of the threat of intimidation by the pimps and procurers. We will wait until all the court cases are settled," he said.

Many business organisations and foundations have donated food and other essentials to the girls, he said.
