TO Chief ACTOR (ATTN: H&R)	VIA Chain of Command	DATE 3-12-75	TIME 1915
FROM Off. JOHN W. BLAKE, Pct. 3	SUBJECT: CONTINUATION OF ☐ OFFICER'S REPORT REGARDING ☒ Suspect "TED"

ITEM:

At 1900, this date, I received a phone call at the Pct. from Mrs. [REDACTED] (41), 30 [REDACTED] 3 SW, Federal Way, VE9-[REDACTED]. She stated that between 1600-1630 today, she and her daughter [REDACTED] (15) were at the Payless store in Federal Way. The daughter pointed out a subject and mentioned how much he looked like "TED". He was observed going to the Shoe Dept. with another taller subject. The daughter apparently became more insistent on his looks, so Mrs. [REDACTED] went within 15' of him to get a closer look. The two subjects went out another door, and she didn't think of looking for a vehicle. When Mrs. [REDACTED] got home, she cut out the drawing of "TED" in the newspaper and drew in the hair/mustache as she saw it and was convinced herself that this was the person.

DESCRIPTION:

Hair	- Blonde to Sandy, parted in middle, curly/bushed out some, length almost to shoulder
Eyes	- Described as being clear blue
Face	- Thin with blondish mustache (thin), clean shaven otherwise
Height	- Around 5'8". Mrs. LOVE is about 5'6" and stated he was a little taller then her.
Build	- Estimated as medium
Clothing	- Levis/Levi jacket
Other	- Wearing cast on foot, had cane, and walked with limp.

Mrs. [REDACTED] was additionally curious as to why a person with a cast on would be in the Shoe Dept., unless the second subject was shopping. She is saving the drawing she made. Is concerned that her name will be made public.

Dear Capt. Joseph N. Mackie

As, a concerned citizen who sympathizes with the bereaved parents of the girls whose skulls have been discovered, I send this information to you about a young man in the custody of the Los Angeles Police Dept whose description is similar to your suspect named, Ted.

It struck me that there was a similarity as, I read about the crimes committed in your area. The young man in L. A. presented himself as an Eagle Scout from Canada, and charmed the parents of a small boy, scout enough, to give him permission to take their son on an outing. He spoke with an English accent. He kidnapped the boy, and was only apprehended after he landed a stolen airplane several days later. The young boy was still with him.

I am sorry, I cannot remember the names of those involved. It happened about a month ago.

Sincerely,

Mrs. Ann Leach

How Death Awaited Young Women in a Stranger's Car

By David P. Johnson
FROM SEATTLE

Lake Sammamish State Park, in the foothills of the Cascades 10 miles east of here, was crowded that sunny afternoon last July when 23-year-old Janice Ott bicycled out there.

While she was at the park, a witness said later, a young man of medium build, and with an arm in a sling or a cast, came along and asked Mrs. Ott if she would help him load his small sailboat onto his car. The boat, he said, was a short distance away—they would go in the car. They went to the parking area, and Janice Ott never returned.

Weeks later the skeletal remains of three women were found in a wooded area near Lake Sammamish. Mrs. Ott was one of them. She is one of the nine young women in the Pacific Northwest who have disappeared in the past year under strikingly similar circumstances.

A Simple Preventive

The deaths and disappearances not only have caused fear and worry here in the Seattle area but also have given rise to an effort by some victims' parents to help others avoid similar tragedies. They indicate they intend to press for tightening of criminal laws and of treatment of sex offenders. And they underscore a commandment that surely almost every youngster has heard from parents: Never get into a car with a stranger.

As the investigation of the disappearances of the nine young women progressed, a similarity of circumstances emerged. Their pictures are on the wall of the homicide division in the King County Police headquarters, and they look like sisters. All were 18 to 22 years old; all had long, straight hair; and all were pretty. Five were students at various college campuses.

Accounts of witnesses indicate that the mysterious young man who was last seen with Janice Ott was also the man last seen with perhaps three of the other victims. Police say the man spoke softly with a British accent, was tanned, had blond-brown hair that partly covered his ears, was about five feet, eight inches tall, and weighed about 155 pounds. He is known to have approached at least five other girls at Lake Sammamish that same July day.

An Innocent Manner

He told several of the girls his name was Ted, they reported, and his manner seemed innocent and disarming. Whether the man's disability was contrived or genuine, his appeal for help enlisted sympathy. One of the witnesses approached by Ted says he pointed out a metallic-brown Volkswagen Beetle in the parking lot as his. She saw the license plate. She has undergone hypnosis twice in the hope her subconscious mind would produce the license numbers to help investigators.

Descriptions of the suspect vary in detail, but police artists have drawn a picture of him, and it has been widely circulated. Police have interviewed hundreds of men bearing some resemblance to Ted, and they have examined hundreds of Volkswagens.

The second victim linked to Ted was Denise Naslund, 18, who disappeared from Lake Sammamish State Park on the same day Mrs. Ott vanished. Police guess that Ted disposed of Mrs. Ott, then returned and picked up Ms. Naslund.

The emergence of Ted as the prime suspect in the disappearance of the two women at the park led police to re-examine earlier disappearances still under investigation. Three months earlier, on April 17, Susan Elaine Rancourt, an 18-year-old freshman from Anchorage, vanished from the campus of Central Washington State College, at Ellensburg, about 90 miles east across the Cascades from Lake Sammamish. She was last seen about 9:30 p.m., as

Two other women students at Ellensburg recalled that a man with his arm in a cast and resembling Ted's description had asked them on separate occasions to help him carry a big armload of books to his car on the same night Susan Rancourt vanished. When they reached his parked car, a Volkswagen, each was asked to get in the car. That made them suspicious, and they hurried away.

Early this month two college forestry students on a field trip on the side of Taylor mountain, about seven miles southeast of the site where the remains of Janice Ott and Denise Naslund were discovered, came upon scattered human bones, skulls, and hair.

Hundreds of volunteers, including search-and-rescue Explorer Scouts from all over Washington, conducted a shoulder-to-shoulder search of the area on their hands and knees. Enough material was collected to positively identify the remains of four persons by dental charts. One was Susan Rancourt.

Others identified were: Roberta Kathleen Parks, 20, of Lafayette, Calif., who vanished May 6 from Oregon State University at Corvallis, some 270 miles to the south; Lynda Ann Healy, 21, a University of Washington senior who vanished from her Seattle rooming house on Jan. 31, 1974; and Brenda Carol Ball, 22, last seen leaving a Seattle tavern during the early morning hours of June 1.

Still missing and not accounted for are Donna Gail Manson, 19, who disappeared from Evergreen State College in Olympia on March 12, 1974; and Georgann Hawkins, 18, who vanished June 11 less than a block from her sorority house near the University of Washington campus in Seattle. A witness later told police she had helped a man on crutches, who vaguely resembled Ted, cross a street in the vicinity on the night Ms. Hawkins disappeared.

Few Clues for Conjecture

A possible ninth victim, Mrs. Vonnle Stuth, 19, vanished from her south Seattle home last Thanksgiving eve. Police suspect her disappearance may not be connected with the others, however.

"It's hard to believe that something this bizarre is true," says Capt. Joseph N. Mackie, who is heading an 11-man task force of Seattle and King County police. "With the latest developments we have some linkage with six of the crimes. We're going to have to start all over from the beginning. We are at a terrible disadvantage because we have no idea how they were killed. We haven't found one scrap of clothing or jewelry anywhere."

Says Mackie: "These girls didn't feel they were being picked up. He disarms his victims. But just because someone appears innocuous doesn't mean they aren't dangerous. Girls who are approached for help should turn the request down. And the next thing they should do is notify us."

The distraught parents of the victims are finding some comfort in an exchange of correspondence and in meetings, says Mrs. Kenneth Lindstad, mother of a missing girl, Vonnle Stuth. Mrs. Lindstad says she set about organizing the parents into a group after wondering for a long time what she could do about her daughter's disappearance.

Supporting Victims

Dr. Donald Blackburn, an official of the Spokane public-school system and father of Mrs. Ott, says group pressures may be one of the best approaches to reforming the criminal-justice system in the state of Washington. A former supervisor for the state Board of Prison Terms and Paroles, Blackburn, in a recent letter to President Ford, was critical of correctional-system policies.

"Because of the relaxed supervision and control policies which were coming into effect, I left that service some 16 years ago," he wrote the President. "It has been evident for some time that the tremendous increase in serious crime does not support the 'new' and 'enlightened' approach to community control and rehabilitation. Many of our programs have been not only unsuccessful but dangerous and irresponsible. . . .

"Courts, legislators, agency and elected officials for too long and too often have been listening to an uninformed and biased minority. It would seem the time has come to hear the victimized majority."

Mrs. Eleanor Rose, mother of Denise Naslund, says she is bitter about her only daughter's death and the mystery surrounding it. She has joined a drive to restore the death penalty in the state of Washington. "They say they need 140,000 signatures by July 3 to certify the initiative to the ballot next November," she says. "I'm going to help get those signatures. I feel it's the only thing I have left. I'm doing something for my daughter. If they catch whoever did this to her, I wouldn't want them to live."

And from Anchorage, Mrs. Dale Rancourt, mother of Susan, wrote to Mrs. Lindstad: "Dale and I have always tried to teach our children to reach out to those who need help. But now it seems that may not have been so wise."

ATTN: Detective Robert Keppell

Dear Sir:

During the day of May 6, 1975, a woman came into our office and stated she wanted to give some information regarding a possible suspect in the homicides involving women on the coast. After talking with this woman at some length, it is my feeling that she is a mental suspect, however felt it best to pass this information onto you in the event that you may want to make some contact with her ex-husband and daughter who are living in your area.

The woman's name is Loriane M. [REDACTED], 21 East Second, Apartment #20, Spokane, 747 9923, DOB: 7/14/21. Mrs. Schuessler states that her husband in 1956 made some comment to her regarding men pretending they have an injury to be able to enhance their chances of making contact with women. There does not seem to be anything else that would make her ex-husband a suspect, other than she knows that he would be very capable of killing. Her ex-husband is [REDACTED], 18 [REDACTED] Highway 99, North Linwood, DOB: 8 [REDACTED] 18. She also has a daughter living in Brier, Washington, a [REDACTED] 23 [REDACTED] Brier Road. She states that her daughter is afraid of her father and possibly would not be willing to talk about her father due to her fear. There is also a 17 year old son living with the father, who she states is very much under the influence of his father and would possibly cover for his father. His name is [REDACTED], DOB: 9 [REDACTED] 57. Mrs. [REDACTED] also mentioned a brother of her husband who is supposedly living with her husband or in the same area by the name of [REDACTED]. We are familiar with [REDACTED] as he, years ago, was in trouble in the Spokane area and did some time in the State penitentiary for forgery. In discussing this with Mrs. [REDACTED] I attempted to point out all of the facts as to why her husband does not appear to fit the description and so on, however I was unable to convince her that he could not look as young as "Ted."

If you do make contact regarding this and you feel the same as I do that possibly Mrs. [REDACTED] has a mental problem, I would appreciate being advised.

Dear Sirs:

Re: Your Case #74-96644

On August 8, 1974, your Department put out a special bulletin regarding the missing Janice Anne Ott.

Contained in this bulletin is basic information on a suspect and a possible suspect vehicle which is a Bug-design Volkswagen painted an unusual medium shade of brown. Based on this information that was picked up by the news media we have received a number of calls regarding brown Volkswagen Bugs being seen in the Spokane area. The information contained in your bulletin is quite brief and the purpose of my letter at this time is to inquire if there is any further information on the Volkswagen and whether or not the information should be considered accurate enough so that all brown Volkswagen Bugs of this type should be checked out thoroughly.

Dear Sir:

Recently a TV report said a Captain in either the City or County Police was considering using a psychic to help in the disappearances of several girls. I may be the one who put him on this, since I'd sent a tear sheet from the National Enquirer to Mrs. [REDACTED] ([REDACTED] mother).

I might suggest additionally that you place the key witnesses under hypnosis - something much more easily done than importing one of the few proven psychics. Local doctors can help you locate a good hypnotist.

Under hypnosis, especially in the time-regression technique, a person usually recalls events with greater clarity - especially traumatic events which they might otherwise suppress.

I suggest this particularly with the 15 year old girl who was found tied up in a field after she'd been abducted.

If you're interested, you can refer to my letters to Mrs. [REDACTED], the [REDACTED] Committee, and the Seattle Police - although I accomplished nothing. For awhile I was getting a lot of [REDACTED] ESP - for no good reason... it just started coming in. I ~~now~~ believe the trouble with ESP is like ham radio: When is it coming from?

I now believe I was getting some real ESP, and one message from [redacted] - but it could have come from anybody... her family, committee people, police officers - anyone concentrating intensely on the case. Since I am not a trained "ESPer", I can't hold on a message more than a minute or so. Consciousness operates as a block, and ESP is precisely unconscious.

Also: Even if I were "right on," how could I chuck it out? I can't see through walls, even if I feel like she's right in the block - a problem I realized when I drove around north of Seattle looking for places to match ESP clues. I felt very, very "spooky" several times (but not when I drove around in the south end) - but what could I do? "Hey, Sheriff - but that door is... I feel spooky!" Sure!

My own hunch now about these girls (and I've had no ESP about them) is: Check out Satanic cults of the "Manson" variety - ~~cycle~~ "bikers" who were in the area - sex clubs. It's possible you're dealing with slavers who procure girls for clubs and parties... or for export.

Otherwise - it's got to be a psychopath who is strung out over one type of girl. Find the original girl - the one who gave him problems... and you've found him. Maybe he doesn't dare touch her - and has to find substitutes.

Once, before the psycho from Western State was caught, I started ~~beg~~ making maps. I noted that the Madrona rapists area was equidistant between the U District + [redacted] - and West Seattle... and also that (if we include [redacted]) there was a leap-frog + Thursday-Friday sequence... I think it was Thursdays north end - Fridays West Seattle. But the arrest of the fellow from Western State blew that.

My theory was then a UW student who had a schedule (only 15,000 suspects!). For some reason, I "saw" him as having a mustache. In fact, I'd recognize him if I saw him in real life - (proving nothing).

I noticed that a "Canady" got 2 years last week. Is that the same one who killed Mary Anne Bjornson a few years back - and has he been out on the street?

Anyway - try the hypnotist thing. And good luck!

Dear Sir:

I wrote previously identifying myself as the probable person who had put you onto the psychic (National Enquirer) through a letter to Mrs. [REDACTED].

I subsequently read of the predictions by astrologers. My concern here is the same as I gave in a letter to KING TV: is it necessary that the public know this? The man you're after reads the papers too -- and once he's read that his VW is hot, or his calendaric pattern has been discovered... well, he'd have to be really stupid not to respond to that.

I'm aware that you may have a purpose in this -- that you may want the criminal to know certain things, so you need not answer to defend yourself. I mention it not to criticize but to help.

The public's "need to know" is not that vital in these cases that they must know all the police know. When the suspect has been taken in custody, or arraigned, it is time enough to reveal details. Meanwhile, the only purpose served by such revelations, as far as I can see (and barring the possibility that you are deliberately planting material) is to sell papers.

I'm also against the policy of printing or broadcasting the addresses, and even names of victims, particularly in cases of assaults against women. I knew a woman ~~who~~ who had her purse snatched a few years ago... the neighborhood paper ran her name, and she got crank calls for weeks afterwards -- I was there once and heard one of them. If they'll do that in a mere purse-snatch... what happens to rape victims whose names are printed?

Perhaps the answer is for the courts, police, and media to work out an "eventual publication" policy; not censorship or suppression, but delay. The public will eventually learn all that it needs to learn -- and if time devalues it -- then it couldn't have been all that essential to the public anyway.

- ② In my previous letter I referred to charts I had begun when there were three women and little [REDACTED] missing (apparently invalidated when two bodies were discovered in West Seattle and a man subsequently arrested). I had also attempted correlations with phases of the moon. ~~As~~ As I recall, a perfect correlation was not there -- but there was a rough correlation. You have probably already thought of what seems obvious to me: "staking out" ~~the~~ likely areas when the phases of the moon are right (for the criminal).

LYG-DMAN

The question is: When are these ~~phases~~ phases? It may not be precisely at the full of the moon, but maybe two or three days before.

It is known, of course, that there is a correlation between phases of the moon and the menstrual cycles of women. Apparently their life-time cycle is determined by the phase of the moon when they were born, a fact noted by "Iron Curtain" scientists who have devised charts 98 per cent effective for both conception and contra-ception. (In this it is not the bleeding that is significant, but ovulation, which is much more regular.)

Accordingly, the phase the moon was in when past abductions occurred may be more important than whether or not the moon is new or full.

- ③ Another factor I'd noted when I was keeping charts was a marked proximity to freeways. -- a block away... the first U District girl... 2 or 3 blocks from I-5... the West Seattle girls... found a few blocks from the Spokane Street freeway. I haven't looked up the others, but I'm guessing he likes an area near a freeway so that an hour would take him a couple of counties away.

It may be, sir, that police "missing persons" methods are out of date, originating in a time when people almost always were just "missing" and not usually victims of foul play. With the incidence of violence rising, (if it were left to me) I'd devise a methodology that assumes a crime of violence from the first moment -- until proven otherwise.

Accordingly, I'd first broadcast an "APB" on the victim, with special attention given to freeways and gateways... and then close in. Naturally the usual neighborhood search will be going on, but nowadays the abductor will be counting on that two or three hours to two or three days of local searching before a general alarm is broadcast.

In other words, I'd approach the problem from this premise: it's easier to tighten a drag-net than to broaden it. Any criminal with any brains can keep ahead of an enlarging drag-net -- but if it's closing in, he may lose his cool and make mistakes. To my mind, the "all states" bulletin is useless even one day after the event. The criminal will probably be "underground" inside the first 24 -- the first 12 hours... perhaps slipping back into his usual environment where his absence won't be noted (as in week-end crimes).

- (4) would it do any good to ask Canadian police and newspapers and TV to ask people to report the absence of men who look like "Ted" ~~xx~~ at the time the girls were abducted? (Following the lead that he may be Canadian.)

Astrologers may give you help as to when he may strike next -- but there are several schools of them, and not enough is yet known about cosmic influences. They are beginning to do statistical studies now involving positions of heavenly bodies in relation to health, life span, height -- etc., but these are not conclusive yet... and in any case, nobody will ever be able to predict the precise, day-after-day behaviour of people. An isolated incident from time to time in the life of one ~~xx~~ given person -- there are a very, very few people who have a random (uncontrollable, extra-rational) ability to "see" future events, but...

- (5) Psychics, on the other hand, employ "mental telepathy." Often contact with an object "tunes them in" on a given person's frequency -- but often (as in the case of the psychic in the Boston Strangler case) they don't know who they were tuning in on. That was my problem. I was getting stuff from everybody. I'm certain that I was "on" a Seattle police detective once. Amateurs, I'm afraid, are of little help ... unless you find one so certain he'll practically beat you up to make you believe him.

Much more promising would be importing one of the half-dozen or so with known success ~~ix~~ with other police departments, such as the one noted in the Enquirer.

- (6) One more idea: Get the best dog(s) you can, and give them the scent of one of the girls... then have them sniff out parking lots at places similar to where the girls ~~w~~ disappeared -- and of course, the places where they disappeared. If the car comes back in which the girls were held -- would a dog be able to detect it?

There is one more possibility, but if it's true, neither you nor any human agency can do anything about it. What would you do, for instance, with cries for help heard, people rushing out, following tracks in the newly-laid snow -- only to find the tracks ~~xxxx~~ just stop in the middle of a field...? (this in an ~~era~~ long before aircraft.) (Actual case in England).

One ~~x~~ police officer remarked it was "as if they'd disappeared from the face of the earth." That may be exactly the case.

Yours Truly

Dear Sir:

In respect to your investigation of the human remains found on Taylor Mountain and Issaquah, you should get a completely fresh investigative crew, and have them read all the evidence thus far accumulated. I am in a position to know that being in the process of accumulating evidence and leads, a person develops theories and projections that remain even though subsequent evidence would change the probabilities, and it is impossible to pursue sound logic.

I might add that in Jersey City, a fresh crew picked up a case twenty years after the murder that had baffled those who had worked on it from the beginning, and solved it at once, arresting the culprit.

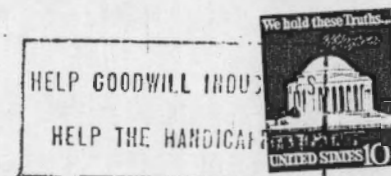

Yours sincerely,

John W. Lynch

Details: A friend of his is a public health nurse at the Grays Harbor County Public Health Dept...she is still not willing to give her name, but she told Lyon that a young man named Ted, fitting the composite description in the papers, with a slight English accent works in their building (county health)...he drives a yellow Porsche and has access to a friend's brown Beetle (which he drives). She says he travels a lot and is in and out of work. She says he is a student, working on his Masters (she thinks) at a college in Eastern Wash., which she thinks could be Central WSC..she didn't say what job he held in Grays Harbor. PAGE NO. 1 COMPLAINT NO. 10142

COMPLAINT POSSIBLE INFO. RE MURDERS

COMPLAINANT: ARSENAULT, Jacqueline, DOB 13-1-24, 11927 - 75 A. Ave., Delta, B. C., no phone

Details - Action - Remarks
1. At approximately 10:30 p.m. 11 September 1974 I attended at 11927 - 75 A. Avenue, where the caller stated she had some information with regard to some murders.
2. I spoke to the captionally noted and she related that she has a friend, HILTZHEIMER, Annie of 8047 N.E. Secord Place, Bellvue, Washington. A person who frequents this house, surname unknown, first christian name "Ted" had been investigated by the Snohomish Sheriff's Dept. and the F.B.I. in regard to the female murders that have been committed in the area. ARSENAULT described this "Ted" as psychotic and capable of anything. She related to me two incidents that would confirm that he was more than different.
3. When she last visited her friend, HILTZHEIMER, about the middle of August ARSENAULT had tried one of Mrs. HILTZHEIMER'S wigs on and had left it on the dining room table. The wig went missing, however was not immediately noticed. HILTZHEIMER found the wig wrapped in one of her missing coats recently. The articles were found in a bush on the HILTZHEIMER property. This "TED" person was around when the articles went missing.
4. Mrs. ARSENAULT feels that because one of the murdered girls was taken or seen in the area of a womans washroom and the fact that this "TEDS" car was seen in the area where the girls were picked up, there might be some connection in the missing female clothing.
5. Mrs. ARSENAULT states that none of the kids that frequent the HILTZHEIMER house would have any reason to steal the clothes as they are supposedly quite well off. Mrs. HILTZHEIMER is not supposed to be too smart and is an alcoholic and would not see anything peculiar.
6. Mrs. ARSENAULT seems to be a normal person and gave the impression of being a stable person.

Adult demons are popular

By AGNES ANSTETT

The coloring book, a long time no-no for the creative youngster, is making a heavy come back. This time, however, it's for the adult world.

Now, what adult is going to take the time to fool around with coloring books? You'd be surprised. There are many. There is, in fact, one publishing company in California that handles nothing else but.

The fad began about two years ago. Possibly Altair was one of the first. A new theme on the same idea came out this March called Psychological Demons by Randy LaChapelle. The author of the 32-page slick-cover book is the son of Ed and Dolores LaChapelle and former Finn Hill resident.

What first began as a hobby, soon grew into material for Randy's book. Colin and Allison, to whom the book is dedicated, are two children in Canada Randy entertained by drawing demons of their character traits.

This winter Randy again took pad and pencil and sketched University of Washington friends' particular character demons — just for fun. The book became a reality shortly after that. The demons are of a wide variety, the anger demon, the procrastination demon, the shattered demon. Each page in the book merits a personality trait in descriptive caricature.

Randy grew up in the Kirkland area, attended Woodside Priory in California and majored in English at the University of Washington. He's studied Yoga and Jungian psychology and has done welded sculpture.

Randy's book Psychological Demons was recently taken to school by a sixth grader — not in this area. The children understood the concept and each drew their own demon. The teacher was a bit upset with the results. Two-thirds of the class drew their own demon as a dunce.

The demons depicted in black lines on stark white pages are psychologically stimulating and are known to haunt the reader. Shutting the book and saying "So what?" doesn't make them go away.
