WHITE COLLAR CRIME STUDY

In his forward to Herbert Edelhertz's May, 1970 monograph 'The Nature, Impact and Prosecution of White-Collar Crime,' Henry Ruth, director of the National Institute of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice, wrote, "In addressing the research priorities, the National Institute has developed an intensive concern that so-called "white collar crime" receives scant attention from the law enforcement and research communities." He continued by saying that "the entire field of white collar crime represents a national priority for action and research - to define the problem, to examine its many faces, to measure its impact, to look for ways in which its victims can be helped, and to determine how such crime can be prevented, deterred and effectively prosecuted."

For anyone wishing to study this area the initial problem is one of definition, understanding the scope of the activities labelled "white-collar crime". Edelhertz, in his monograph, defined it broadly as "an illegal act or series of illegal acts committed by nonphysical means and by concealment or guile, to obtain money or property, to avoid the payment or loss of money or property, or to obtain business or personal advantage." Charity and religious frauds, frauds by agents writing false policies, food and drug violations, padding payrolls, expense account frauds and frauds by computor, causing false payouts are just a few of the activities that fall under the term of whitecollar crime. Given such a broad range of offenses it becomes clear the boundaries between organized crime, consumer protection, and white-collar crime are somewhat ambiguous. Nevertheless the problem of enforcement and prevention remains.

The Seattle Crime Commission is currently studying the question of how it may become involved in development of preventive remedies in this area and to what extent it may become appropriately involved. The Commission is very fortunate to have the council and assistance of two well known experts in this field. The first, Commission member and psychologist, Dr. Ezra Stotland has engaged in the study of he social scientific aspects of white-collar crime for many years. The second, formerly Chief of the Fraud Section, Criminal Division, U.S. Department of Justice and presently with Battelle N.W. Research Center, is Herbert Edelhertz, whose monograph on white-collar crime remains the principle, most authoritative work in the field. Mr. Edelhertz has expressed a good deal of enthusiasm at the prospect of the Crime Commission's entrance into this area, and hopes that the Commission's activities may coincide with his own research.

During the first couple months of 1973 Commission members and staff will consult with law enforcement and prosecutive agencies and engage in research to define the nature of the problem as it exists in Seattle and across the nation as well as the specific kinds of contributions it can make toward the control of white-collar crime.

Commission Director, Tom Sampson (center) discusses plans for white collar crime study and seminar with Ted Bundy (left), Assistant Director, and Commission member, Dr. Ezra Stotland, (right).

WEST SEATTLE COMMUNITY RESOURCE CENTER

In the six month period from May 1 to October 1972, the Resource Center has had received over 1500 incoming calls and over 700 personal visits. In addition, over eighty juveniles have had conferences with the counselors. At the Center there have also been a number of drop-ins and phone calls from people seeking help who have heard of the Center through newspapers, word of mouth or speaking appearances by Center staff. The Center has provided speakers on the Criminal Justice System for many local organizations and received an excellent response indicating the interest in this current topic. Also the Center has served as a base for about twenty Neighborhood Youth Corps during the summer. The young people in the Corps provided approximately 4500 hours of community service.

The public has indicated that they are more comfortable receiving assistance in the informal location of the Resource Center. They often call on the Center when problems arise. The staff consists of a full time State Parole and Probation Officer, full time Municipal Probation Officer, part time King County Probation Officer, part time Mental Health Counselor and Psychologist (one each) and two Juvenile Court Counselors. The Center staff feels that the informal surroundings has aided them in assisting and rehabilating their clients. All of the agencies involved agree on the need for, and the value of the work at the Center-the problem now is to fit it into already strained budgets. (Mary Van Fredenberg, a Crime Commission Staff Assistant, has served as coordinator and manager of the Center during all of 1972.)

ASSAULTS AGAINST WOMEN

In April of 1972 a conference entitled "Speak Out On Rape" was held in Seattle. A cross section of women of varying backgrounds and ages organized and attended this conference to hear and present studies and testimony on a subject that is arousing an increasing amount of public concern.

Recognizing the growing interest in the control and prevention of assaults against women and having received information that the reported incidents of such crimes has increased greatly during 1972, the Seattle Crime Commission has decided to take an active role in this area. The Commission has been invited to participate with the Evergreen Safety Council's Women's Committee and a number of women's groups from Seattle and throughout the State in an initial planning session designed to deal with the subject of women's safety. Among the topics to be examined are: who are the victims; how can women be educated to protect themselves; can laws in this area be changed to eliminate prosecutive problems; and how can reporting of such assaults be increased.

Ultimately this joint effort will produce a comprehensive, city-wide program of action to reduce the incidents of assaults against women. The findings of the groups involved together with their proposals are scheduled for presentation sometime in February at a symposium co-sponsored by the Crime Commission.

Those who wish to make a contribution to this effort are urged to contact Dorothy Gilmour of the Evergreen Safety Council or the Seattle Crime Commission office as soon as possible.

This bulletin is published monthly by the Seattle Crime Prevention Commission If you wish to receive it regularly, contact: Tom Sampson — 583-6530.

THE ZERO-IN PROJECT

Starting in January, 1972, the Crime Prevention commission and the Seattle Police Department ..tiated, in two areas of Seattle, intensive experimental programs designed to substantially reduce neighborhood and street crimes against personal safety and property. The two areas chosen for this project were the Mt. Baker area and the Capital Hill area, because of the high incident rate of crime and because of the active community councils operating in the areas.

A substantial amount of time was required in organizing all the groups involved, instituting the various programs and coordinating these efforts. As a result, it was decided to make the Mt. Baker area the Commission's primary point of interest, and with the cooperative efforts of Captain William Rhodes, of the Seattle Police Department; Fredric C. Tausand, Chairman of the Seattle Crime Prevention Commission; and the Mt. Baker Community Club, the program is making good headway with a lot of enthusiasm on everyones' part.

At the present, two major projects are being initiated in the Mt. Baker area. These are Operation Identification (the engraving of all household valuables with one's driver's license number for deterrant purposes or aid in the recovery of the articles, if stolen, and the formulation of a Juvenile Court Conerence Committee.

On Capital Hill, elections have taken place in the Community Council and the community is now ready to begin its involvement with the project.

Commission Staff Meeting: (I. to r.) Wayne Lieb, Tom Sampson, Jeff Hammarlund, Joe Voiland.

CITIZEN INVOLVEMENT

The field of prisons and probation afford a critical opportunity for concerned citizen involvement.

If crime is to be reduced, we must improve the criminal justice system where the people are.

The historic process of punishment has been counterproductive and yields no social benefits.

Citizen groups should become aware of correction institutions in the state, city and county and redesign the institutions from warehouses for social cargo to catalysts for reform.

Citizens must become aware of the criminal codes at the state and local levels and support change to provide a rational legal system of criminal penalty.

Local communities must provide job opportunities for dischargees from the prison system.

Finally, community based corrections must replace prison walls as much as possible. This can only happen with broad citizen involvement.

> Robert J. Block, Chairman Committee on Prisons and Parole Seattle Crime Prevention Commission

TIELSCH - THE DECISION TO STAY

George Tielsch, Chief of the Seattle Police Department, gave a Christmas present last week to his men and to the citizens of Seattle — his decision to stay on as the city's police chief.

Since Tielsch took command of the police force a couple of years ago, much has been done to rebuild the morale of a formerly demoralized department and the image of the Seattle Police has improved considerably.

Recently, there was some speculation that Tielsch would accept a job as Chief of the Santa Ana Police Department and that's exactly what it turned out to be — speculation.

Tielsch's decision to stay was welcomed by his men and many Seattle citizens.

The Crime Commission looks forward to a year of close cooperation with the Police Department and with Chief Tielsch during 1973.

OFFICE OF THE MAYOR-CITY OF SEATTLE

Wes Uhlman, Mayor

December 21, 1972

During the past three years, the reduction of crime in Seattle has been one of my highest priorities. It is gratifying to note that the efforts of citizen groups, including the Seattle Crime Prevention Advisory Commission and the Association of Community Councils, have cooperated with our Police Department and achieved a significant decrease in crime.

Of course, some criminal activity still exists in our city. We can never be assured complete safety from those who would violate our laws. But there are some simple, effective steps that you can take to protect your family and property.

This new edition of the "Stop Crime" brochure, published by the Seattle Crime Prevention Advisory Commission, will inform you of those steps so you can prevent crime. I hope that you will take the time to read the brochure's recommendations.

Through your efforts and through effective police work, we can make Seattle a safer city and a great place in which to live.

DRUG ABUSE

When we use the term "drug abuse" we tend to think only of the illicit drugs: marijuana, LSD, heroin or the amphetamines abused by the "speed" freak. But it is also the adult who may start his day with an amphetamine for a "pick-me-up," end it with several drinks to "unwind" and a barbiturate to put him to sleep.

Our culture teaches us that we can obtain instant relief from tension and stress. Permission to do so is constantly reinforced by advertising and the media.

The problem of drug abuse is an emotionally charged one for most people and many parents feel frustrated in their attempts to communicate effectively with their children.

Some concrete suggestions

Avoid Panic. A panic reaction expressed to the young person who may be using illicit drugs can only serve to alienate him and to confuse what should be straightforward and objective help. It is important to be non-judgmental in discussing drugs. Be calm and informative. Teenagers are entitled to honest and accurate answers about drugs and their effects.

Use of scare techniques is usually ineffective because the teenager's direct knowledge frequently contradicts sensational accounts of drug abuse.

An attitude of active suspicion will not eliminate the problem. What this will do is certainly destroy the climate of trust and confidence essential to open dialogue and discussion.

Keep the lines of communication open. Encourage an atmosphere of understanding toward the young person's point of view. He is engaged in the painful process of growing up and needs to have confidence that adults are making a genuine effort to listen to his very real problems.

Communication between parent and child does not always imply agreement. It does imply respect for the young person as an individual and shows interest and a mutual sharing of concerns on the part of the adult.

One way of showing concern is to accompany the young person to obtain factual information and, if necessary, to seek professional help. This information and help may not be available from the family physician. It is readily available at many crisis intervention centers, free clinics and similar organizations in our community.

HITCHHIKING SAFETY TIPS

The Seattle Crime Prevention Commission recognizes hitchhiking as a legitimate method of transportation. However, any person who hitchhikes or picks up hitchhikers should be aware of the following hitchhiking safety tips:

Avoid hitchhiking between 10 p.m. - 4 a.m. Most crimes committed against or by hitchhikers occur between the hours of 10 p.m. - 4 a.m.

If you are a woman, never hitchhike alone.

Use careful judgment about who you accept a ride with or give a ride to.

Avoid hitchhiking too near to freeway entrances.

Avoid hitchiking in areas where a traffic problem might be created by your presence.
